Welcome message
Mot de bienvenue

Ahmed Hussein

Chief Executive Officer

TNO – The Neighbourhood Organization

A very warm welcome to beautiful Niagara Falls and to the Metropolis Identity Conference.

It is a pleasure to welcome participants from across Canada to this important gathering as we come together to explore issues of identity, belonging, and the experiences of immigrants and newcomers in our communities.

Immigration is about much more than numbers; it is about people, their journeys, their hopes, their families, their contributions, and their desire to build a better future. As our communities become increasingly diverse, questions of identity and belonging are becoming more important than ever.

This conference provides an opportunity to reflect on how immigrants contribute to our country and how we can build communities where everyone has the opportunity to participate, contribute, and feel that they belong.

I hope that over the coming days, you will share ideas, challenge assumptions, learn from one another, and develop new partnerships and approaches to the immigration issues facing our communities today.

Once again, welcome to Niagara Falls. I wish you a productive, engaging, and inspiring conference, and I hope you enjoy your time here.

Elise Herzig

Executive Director

JIAS (Jewish Immigrant Aid Services) Toronto

Dear Colleagues, Partners, and Friends,

I am honoured to welcome you to the 9th Annual Metropolis Identities Summit in Niagara Falls, Ontario. Over the coming days, we will build trust, deepen relationships, and celebrate Canada's evolving diversity. As we gather amid the majestic beauty and natural wonder of the Falls, we begin by acknowledging and thanking the Indigenous Peoples who have cared for and stewarded these lands for a millennia before us.

Niagara Falls is a fitting setting for this summit. Here, countless drops of water come together to create a force of extraordinary power and beauty—a reminder of what becomes possible when diverse voices, ideas, and experiences converge around a shared purpose.

In these complex and challenging times, this gathering offers hope—rooted in service, open dialogue, creative thinking, and community. We come from across the country with diverse identities and perspectives, yet we share a common purpose: to exchange ideas, confront difficult challenges, strengthen relationships, and build communities where everyone feels supported, belongs, and thrives.

I look forward to meeting you, forging new connections, sparking new ideas, and learning with and from each of you. Welcome to the Metropolis Identities Summit. May these two days leave us energized, inspired, and ready to carry our shared learning forward.

Ahmed Hussein

TNO – The Neighbourhood Organization

Bienvenue dans la magnifique région de Niagara et au congrès Metropolis Identités.

C'est un plaisir d'accueillir des participants de partout au Canada à cette importante rencontre, alors que nous nous réunissons pour aborder les questions d'identité, d'appartenance et des expériences des immigrants et des nouveaux arrivants au sein de nos communautés.

L'immigration, c'est bien plus que des chiffres; ce sont des gens, leurs parcours, leurs espoirs, leurs familles, leurs contributions et leur désir de bâtir un avenir meilleur. À mesure que nos communautés se diversifient, les questions d'identité et d'appartenance prennent plus d'importance que jamais.

Ce congrès offre l'occasion de réfléchir à la manière dont les immigrants contribuent à notre pays et à la façon dont nous pouvons bâtir des collectivités où chacun a la possibilité de participer, de contribuer et de se sentir chez soi.

J'espère qu'au cours des prochains jours, vous échangerez des idées, remettrez en question les idées reçues, apprendrez les uns des autres et développerez de nouveaux partenariats et de nouvelles approches pour faire face aux enjeux liés à l'immigration auxquels nos communautés sont confrontées aujourd'hui.

Encore une fois, bienvenue à Niagara Falls. Je vous souhaite un congrès fructueux, stimulant et inspirant, et j'espère que vous apprécierez votre séjour ici.

Elise Herzig

Directrice générale

JIAS (Jewish Immigrant Aid Services) à Toronto

Chers collègues, partenaires et amis,

C'est un honneur pour moi de vous accueillir au 9e Sommet annuel Metropolis Identités à Niagara Falls, en Ontario. Au cours des prochains jours, nous renforcerons la confiance, approfondirons nos liens et célébrerons la diversité en constante évolution du Canada. Alors que nous nous réunissons au cœur de la beauté majestueuse et des merveilles naturelles des chutes, nous tenons tout d'abord à rendre hommage et à remercier les peuples autochtones qui ont pris soin de ces terres et en ont assuré la gestion pendant des millénaires avant nous.

Les chutes du Niagara constituent un cadre idéal pour ce sommet. Ici, d'innombrables gouttes d'eau se rejoignent pour créer une force d'une puissance et d'une beauté extraordinaires — un rappel de ce qui devient possible lorsque des voix, des idées et des expériences diverses convergent vers un objectif commun.

En ces temps complexes et difficiles, ce rassemblement est source d'espoir — un espoir ancré dans le service, le dialogue ouvert, la pensée créative et l'esprit communautaire. Nous venons de partout au pays, avec des identités et des perspectives diverses, mais nous partageons un objectif commun : échanger des idées, relever des défis difficiles, renforcer nos liens et bâtir des communautés où chacun se sent soutenu, trouve sa place et peut s'épanouir.

J'ai hâte de vous rencontrer, de tisser de nouveaux liens, de faire émerger de nouvelles idées et d'apprendre avec vous et les uns des autres. Bienvenue au Sommet Metropolis Identités. Puissent ces deux journées nous laisser pleins d'énergie, inspirés et prêts à mettre en pratique ce que nous aurons appris ensemble.

Jack Jedwab

President and CEO

The Association for Canadian Studies and the Metropolis Institute

On behalf of the Metropolis Institute, it is a pleasure to welcome you to Niagara Falls.

Metropolis Identities was created to examine immigration, its intersections with identity, and how demographic change is reshaping our understanding of who we are as Canadians. This year's theme - Restoring Trust, Strengthening Relationships: Identity, Diversity and Social Harmony in Canada - reflects the particular moment in which we meet.

Trust is fundamental to a diverse society, yet has become fragile amid debates over immigration, religion, language, Indigenous reconciliation and international conflicts. Prejudice, hate, misinformation and polarization make common ground more difficult to find. Rebuilding trust does not mean ignoring differences or disagreements, but creating the conditions to address them through evidence and respectful debate.

Canada's approach to immigration has long relied on public confidence, but changing migration targets, pressures on housing and public services, economic uncertainty and concerns about the immigration system have shifted public attitudes. Those working in immigration, settlement and integration must address these concerns while highlighting newcomers' essential contributions to Canadian society.

The Quebec election and an Alberta referendum have again raised questions about the country's future. Our second plenary will examine what these developments tell us about the state of the federation. Questions of national unity cannot be separated from identity, immigration, language, regional belonging and trust.

Over the next two days, we will hear a wide range of perspectives. We will not agree on everything, nor should we. The value of this Summit lies in our capacity to examine difficult issues honestly, test assumptions against evidence and identify practical ways to strengthen relationships.

Thank you to our speakers, partners and sponsors, and everyone who contributed to this program. Special thanks to our co-Chairs, Elise Herzig and Ahmed Hussein, and to the Metropolis team, particularly James Ondrick, Chloe Peel and Corinne Prince, for their hard work in making this Summit possible.

Jack Jedwab

Président et Directeur général

L'Association d'études canadiennes et l'Institut Metropolis

Au nom de l'Institut Metropolis, j'ai le plaisir de vous souhaiter la bienvenue à Niagara Falls.

Metropolis Identités a été créé pour examiner l'immigration, ses liens avec l'identité, ainsi que la manière dont les changements démographiques redéfinissent notre compréhension de qui nous sommes en tant que Canadiens. Le thème de cette année - Rétablir la confiance, renforcer les relations : identité, diversité et harmonie sociale au Canada - reflète le contexte particulier dans lequel nous nous réunissons.

La confiance est fondamentale dans une société diversifiée, mais elle s'est fragilisée au milieu des débats sur l'immigration, la religion, la langue, la réconciliation avec les Autochtones et les conflits internationaux. Les préjugés, la haine, la désinformation et la polarisation rendent plus difficile la recherche d'un terrain d'entente. Rétablir la confiance ne signifie pas ignorer les différences ou les désaccords, mais créer les conditions permettant de les aborder à l'aide de données probantes et d'un débat respectueux.

L'approche du Canada en matière d'immigration repose depuis longtemps sur la confiance du public, mais l'évolution des objectifs migratoires, les pressions sur le logement et les services publics, l'incertitude économique et les préoccupations concernant le système d'immigration ont fait évoluer les attitudes de la population. Ceux qui travaillent dans les domaines de l'immigration, de l'établissement et de l'intégration doivent répondre à ces préoccupations tout en soulignant les contributions essentielles des nouveaux arrivants à la société canadienne.

Les élections au Québec et un référendum en Alberta ont de nouveau soulevé des questions sur l'avenir du pays. Notre deuxième séance plénière examinera ce que ces événements nous révèlent sur l'état de la fédération. Les questions d'unité nationale ne peuvent être dissociées de l'identité, de l'immigration, de la langue, de l'appartenance régionale et de la confiance.

Au cours des deux prochains jours, nous entendrons une grande diversité de points de vue. Nous ne serons pas d'accord sur tout, et ce n'est pas le but. La valeur de ce Sommet réside dans notre capacité à examiner les questions difficiles avec honnêteté, à confronter nos idées préconçues aux données probantes et à dégager des moyens concrets de renforcer nos relations.

Merci à nos conférenciers, à nos partenaires et à nos commanditaires, ainsi qu'à tous ceux qui ont contribué à ce programme. Nous tenons à remercier tout particulièrement nos coprésidents, Elise Herzig et Ahmed Hussein, ainsi que l'équipe de Metropolis, notamment James Ondrick, Chloé Peel et Corinne Prince, pour leur travail acharné qui a permis de rendre ce Sommet possible.

Temporary Migration and Migrant Worker Support Stream
Série sur la migration temporaire et le soutien aux travailleurs migrants

Temporary and migrant workers are an essential part of communities and labour markets across Canada, yet many continue to face barriers related to employment, immigration status, health care, housing, transportation, language, social inclusion, and access to rights and services.

This stream brings together migrant workers, frontline practitioners, researchers, legal and health experts, community organizations, and program partners to explore more accessible, coordinated, and worker-centred systems of support. Sessions examine collaborative models, the connections between migration, work, and health, partnerships with employers and consulates, legal supports, and new evaluation evidence on TNO – The Neighbourhood Organization's Worker Support Services program, with particular attention to migrant workers' voices and lived experiences.

Les travailleurs temporaires et migrants constituent un élément essentiel des collectivités et des marchés du travail partout au Canada; pourtant, bon nombre d'entre eux continuent de se heurter à des obstacles liés à l'emploi, au statut d'immigration, aux soins de santé, au logement, au transport, à la langue, à l'inclusion sociale et à l'accès aux droits et aux services.

Ce volet rassemble des travailleurs migrants, des intervenants de première ligne, des chercheurs, des experts en droit et en santé, des organismes communautaires et des partenaires de programme afin d'explorer des systèmes de soutien plus accessibles, mieux coordonnés et axés sur les travailleurs. Les séances portent sur les modèles de collaboration, les liens entre la migration, le travail et la santé, les partenariats avec les employeurs et les consulats, les soutiens juridiques, ainsi que les nouvelles données d'évaluation concernant le programme de services de soutien aux travailleurs de TNO – The Neighbourhood Organization, en accordant une attention particulière aux témoignages et aux expériences vécues par les travailleurs migrants.

Canadian Heritage Sessions
Séances Patrimoine canadien

The Canadian Heritage Stream explores how identity, diversity and belonging are evolving in a changing Canada. Through discussions of Canadian identity, multiculturalism, immigration narratives, intercultural understanding, anti-racism and cultural brokering, the sessions examine how Canadians understand themselves and one another within an increasingly diverse society. Bringing together research, community experience and practical approaches, the stream considers how institutions and communities can respond to changing narratives, address racism and systemic barriers, strengthen intercultural trust, and foster a more inclusive sense of belonging in Canada.

Le volet Patrimoine canadien explore l'évolution de l'identité, de la diversité et du sentiment d'appartenance dans un Canada en transformation. À travers des discussions sur l'identité canadienne, le multiculturalisme, les récits d'immigration, la compréhension interculturelle, la lutte contre le racisme et la médiation culturelle, les séances examinent comment les Canadiens se perçoivent eux-mêmes et se perçoivent les uns les autres au sein d'une société de plus en plus diversifiée. Alliant recherche, expérience communautaire et approches pratiques, ce volet examine comment les institutions et les communautés peuvent s'adapter à l'évolution des récits, lutter contre le racisme et les obstacles systémiques, renforcer la confiance interculturelle et favoriser un sentiment d'appartenance plus inclusif au Canada.

Strengthening Canada's economy with an inclusive future of work

The Diversity Institute leads research and evidence-based programs to support job creation, pathways to employment, career progression and entrepreneurship for immigrants and other equity-deserving groups.

Supported by the Future Skills Centre, we examine the major trends shaping Canada's labour market, including technology transformation, geopolitical uncertainty, public opinion about immigration policies and its impact on access to employment for newcomers.

The evidence shows that immigrants remain one of Canada's key economic strengths and are essential to meeting national goals related to skills, employment, entrepreneurship, innovation and trade.

We collaborate with employers and community partners on a range of programs that support pathways to employment and entrepreneurship, including:

- ADaPT (Advanced Digital and Professional Training)
- NEESH (Newcomer Employment & Entrepreneurship Skills Hub)
- WE-Hub (Women's Entrepreneurship Hub)
- Women Entrepreneurship Knowledge Hub (WEKH)
- DiversityLeads
- Inclusive career supports

Plenary Session 1

9:00 - 10:30 | Great room B&C 3rd floor

Restoring Trust: The State of Intergroup Relations in North America

Trust between communities is under pressure across North America. Polarization, social fragmentation, economic anxiety, misinformation, and declining confidence in institutions are reshaping how people perceive one another and their societies. Yet the dynamics of intergroup relations differ significantly between Canada and the United States.

This plenary will examine the current state of cohesion and intergroup trust through a comparative Canada–U.S. lens. Drawing on public opinion data, demographic trends, social research, and institutional indicators, the discussion will explore how citizens perceive one another across lines of ethnicity, language, religion, region, race, and political identity. Panelists will assess what surveys and social indicators reveal about social distance, belonging, polarization, discrimination and national identity.

The session will also consider where Canada's model for managing relations is succeeding or faltering, how the U.S. experience differs, and what lessons both countries may offer in addressing division and rebuilding trust. Special attention will be given to evolving relationships between Indigenous and non-Indigenous peoples, French- and English-speaking communities, regional tensions, and the broader challenge of maintaining cohesion in increasingly diverse societies.

Séance plénière 1

9:00 - 10:30 | Great room B&C 3e étage

Rétablir la confiance : l'état des relations intergroupes en Amérique du Nord

La confiance entre les communautés est mise à rude épreuve partout en Amérique du Nord. La polarisation, la fragmentation sociale, l'inquiétude économique, la désinformation et la perte de confiance dans les institutions redéfinissent la façon dont les gens se perçoivent les uns les autres et perçoivent leurs sociétés. Pourtant, la dynamique des relations intergroupes diffère considérablement entre le Canada et les États-Unis.

Cette séance plénière examinera l'état actuel de la cohésion et de la confiance intergroupes à travers un prisme comparatif entre le Canada et les États-Unis. En s'appuyant sur des données d'opinion publique, des tendances démographiques, des recherches sociales et des indicateurs institutionnels, la discussion explorera la façon dont les citoyens se perçoivent les uns les autres au-delà des clivages ethniques, linguistiques, religieux, régionaux, raciaux et d'identité politique. Les panélistes évalueront ce que les sondages et les indicateurs sociaux révèlent au sujet de la distance sociale, du sentiment d'appartenance, de la polarisation, de la discrimination et de l'identité nationale.

La séance examinera également les points forts et les faiblesses du modèle canadien de gestion des relations, en quoi l'expérience américaine diffère, et quelles leçons les deux pays peuvent offrir pour surmonter les divisions et rétablir la confiance. Une attention particulière sera accordée à l'évolution des relations entre les peuples autochtones et non autochtones, aux communautés francophones et anglophones, aux tensions régionales, ainsi qu'au défi plus large que représente le maintien de la cohésion dans des sociétés de plus en plus diversifiées.

A2 | Restoring Trust in Immigration: Why Economic Inclusion Matters for Canada's Future

Strategy room 5, 5th floor | 11:00 - 12:00 | Canada's Narrative at a Moment of Uncertainty | Panel discussion

Canada's immigration system has long been central to the country's economic growth and identity. Yet rising concerns about housing affordability, labour market pressures, and newcomer integration have challenged public confidence. This session explores how improving economic inclusion and workforce integration can strengthen trust in immigration and reinforce Canada's national narrative. We will discuss how public opinion polling has shaped our public narrative and the role of deeper storytelling in recalibrating the conversation.

A5 | Eight Organizations, One Purpose: How TeaMWork's Collaborative Network Empowers Agricultural Migrant Workers and Builds Trust and Belonging in Southwestern Ontario

Temporary Migration and Migrant Worker Support Stream

Strategy Room 1 5th floor | 11:00 - 12:00 | Immigration, Diversity, and Intercultural Interaction | Panel discussion

Migrant workers often face isolation and complex challenges that no single organization can address alone. This panel explores how the TeaMWork Project unites eight partner organizations across Southwestern Ontario to provide coordinated, worker-centered support. Through collaborative case management, shared expertise, community events, and trusted relationships, TeaMWork strengthens integration, improves access to services, and fosters belonging.

A6 | Building Evaluation Capacity for Canada's Evolving Settlement Landscape

Strategy Room 3 5th floor | 11:00 - 12:00 | Canada's Narrative at a Moment of Uncertainty | Practical workshop

As Canada navigates shifting immigration priorities and fluctuating funding, evaluation across the settlement sector is essential for demonstrating service provider outcomes and better serving newcomers. IMPRESS, a national and equity-integrated program, makes evaluation easy and automated. This interactive workshop explores IMPRESS's online platform and toolkit to build sector-wide evaluation capacity.

A8 | More Than Just Posters: Transforming Anti-Hate Intent into Action

Upper Fallsview
Studio B
5th floor | 11:00 - 12:00 | Racism, Hate, Prejudice and the Challenge of Building Trust | Case study or best practice session

This session explores how effective anti-hate campaigns with practical tools can move beyond awareness to mobilize and empower residents to act. It highlights a multi-platform approach built on research and reporting mechanisms, and community partnerships to translate intent into sustained action. The discussion will also explore how organizations can center community-informed research and co-design to build policies and systems grounded in equity, and expertise through lived experience.

B1 | What Employers Really Want: Immigrants and the Canadian Economy

Strategy room 5, 5th floor | 1:15 - 2:15 | Immigration, Diversity, and Intercultural Interaction | Educational lecture or keynote talk

As Canada faces unprecedented challenges – the aging population, trade uncertainty, and technological disruption - immigration remains critical to our global competitiveness. The impact of sudden cuts to immigration is being seen across sectors and has been associated with recent softening in the economy. As Canada continues to rethink its approach to immigration, employers, particularly small and medium enterprises, are critical to the discussion. This session focuses on reiterating the contributions of immigrants to the economy with a focus on employer needs, entrepreneurship and the implications for policy and practice.

B2 | Designed to Distract: When Organized Disinformation Campaigns Undermine DEI Efforts

Upper Fallsview Studio A, 5th floor | 1:15 - 2:15 | Canada's Narrative at a Moment of Uncertainty | Case study or best practice session

Discover how disinformation campaigns target and undermine DEI efforts in public institutions. Drawing on a campaign against a municipal anti-hate initiative, this engaging session uncovers tactics that distort narratives, erode trust, and strain organizations, while equipping participants with practical strategies to respond, protect capacity, and build resilience without amplifying harm.

B3 | From Resilience to Rupture: Understanding and Addressing Delayed-Onset Trauma Among Refugees After Resettlement

Fallsview Studio B, 3rd floor | 1:15 - 2:15 | Immigration, Diversity, and Intercultural Interaction | Case study or best practice session

Many refugees initially appear well but later experience family and systemic ruptures as trauma resurfaces post-resettlement. Drawing on trauma-informed, culturally grounded, and family-systems approaches, the presentation examines early trauma assessment and systemic interventions that strengthen family resilience and prevent delayed-onset psychological distress among refugees.

B4 | Standing Against Hate: Empowering Canadians to Respond to Racism

Strategy room 2, 5th floor | 1:15 - 2:15 | Racism, Hate, Prejudice and the Challenge of Building Trust | Practical workshop

Everyone has a role to play in eradicating racism in our communities. Presentations in this session outline the efforts made by SPOs and umbrella organizations, in tandem with academics, to address racism and to provide Canadians with a "toolkit" to assist them in responding to racism in their communities and everyday lives. While there is no "one size fits all" solution to racism, education and awareness among our citizens will help pave the way towards a racism-free Canada.

B6 | Beyond Service Counts: Worker Voices and Evaluation Lessons from Worker Support Services

Temporary Migration and Migrant Worker Support Stream

Fallsview Studio C, 3rd floor | 1:15 - 2:15 | Immigration, Diversity, and Intercultural Interaction | Panel discussion

How do we know when migrant worker support programs are making a meaningful difference? This session examines the impact of Worker Support Services (WSS) through program delivery, evaluation evidence, and the lived experiences of temporary foreign workers. It explores access to support, knowledge of workplace rights, unmet needs, trust, belonging, and workers' confidence in exercising their rights. Together, these perspectives highlight the value of incorporating worker voices, frontline knowledge, and program evidence to strengthen services and policies affecting migrant workers.

B9 | "You need to find a community as a first step": Arab Families' Experiences in Building Community

Fallsview Studio A
3rd floor | 1:15 - 2:15 | Immigration, Diversity, and Intercultural Interaction | Research or project presentation

This presentation draws from the Arab Families' Experiences in Ontario Project to showcase the challenges, expectations, and experiences of Arab parents raising their children and building community in a new Canadian context. Using the Arabic concept of tarbiyah as the theoretical lens, this presentation highlights how Arab parents navigate their children's upbringing, build community, preserve their cultural heritage, and develop belonging mechanisms while adapting to their new environment. Ultimately, this presentation underlines the politics of belonging and establishing communities in Canada, emphasizing the critical role of community development and appropriate settlement services that support newcomers' success and well-being.

C1 | Values-Based Perspectives of Citizens Are Critical in Making Collective Policy Choices

Fallsview Studio B
3rd floor | 2:45 - 3:15 | Rethinking the Language of Diversity | Panel discussion

A deeper level of policy engagement occurs when spaces are created deliberately to understand citizens' values. As Canadians we have a core set of shared values but how we choose to practice them may differ. It is therefore imperative to understand the context in which certain values enter policy discussion.

C3 | Navigating the Ethics of Displacement: Trust, Transparency, and Power Dynamics in Community-Led Research

Strategy Room 5
5th floor | 2:45 - 3:15 | Immigration, Diversity, and Intercultural Interaction | Research or project presentation

Research involving displaced populations is frequently characterized by a profound power imbalance, systemic distrust, and ethical dilemmas that challenge the integrity of the knowledge produced. By analyzing the psychological coping mechanisms of displaced subjects and the institutional marginalization of community scholars, this paper argues for a systemic shift toward the Asset-Based Community Development model and ensuring a sanctuary island for the displaced scholars to bridge the gap between traditional academia and community-based research for their barrier-free integration in Canada. It advocates for Asset-Based Community Development approaches and protected pathways that enable displaced scholars to contribute to host-country research ecosystems.

Strategy Room 1, 5th floor | 2:45 - 3:15 | The Future of Canada's Francophonie / L'avenir de la francophonie canadienne | Panel discussion / Discussion en panel

This panel invites participants to rethink the role of immigrant Francophone youth in Canada. Too often viewed as service recipients or individuals to be integrated, they are in fact a powerful driver of leadership, innovation, and community vitality. This discussion will explore ways to strengthen their participation.

Cette table ronde propose de repenser la place des jeunes francophones issus de l'immigration au Canada. Trop souvent considérés comme des bénéficiaires de services ou des personnes à intégrer, ils représentent pourtant un puissant levier de leadership, d'innovation et de dynamisme communautaire. Cette discussion explorera comment renforcer leur participation afin de soutenir la vitalité de la francophonie canadienne.

C8 | The Immigrant Discombobulation Index: Measuring The Gap Between Expectations And Realities

Strategy Room 7, 5th floor | 2:45 - 3:15 | Immigration, Diversity, and Intercultural Interaction | Research or project presentation

The Immigrant Discombobulation Index measures gaps between newcomers' expectations and realities. Drawing on Generation1.ca's research and other sources, we examine how underemployment, bias, isolation, limited networks, technology and structural barriers shape belonging, confidence, trust and agency. It supports human-centred workforce integration across migrant-rich countries, including Canada and the United States.

D2 | The future of the MWP

Temporary Migration and Migrant Worker Support Stream

Strategy Room 1, 5th floor | 3:45 - 4:45 | Immigration, Diversity, and Intercultural Interaction | Panel discussion

The Government of Canada has made a drastic change to policy regarding immigration including the levels of temporary foreign workers. Coordination between agencies, the three levels of government and foreign representations is essential to know what the impact of these policies is on the ground, for the economy and for the workers.

D3 | Beyond "Diversity": Reframing Language, Power, and Practice in SWIS and School-Based Settlement

Strategy Room 5, 5th floor | 3:45 - 4:45 | Rethinking the Language of Diversity | Case study or best practice session

Language is often treated as neutral, but in settlement and education systems, it actively shapes how newcomer students and families are understood, supported, and measured. In SWIS (Settlement Workers in Schools), commonly used terms—such as "diversity," "vulnerable," or "integration"—carry embedded assumptions that influence program design, partnerships, and outcomes. This session invites participants to critically examine the language underpinning newcomer settlement work and explore how reframing key terms can shift practice, strengthen alignment, and enhance system responsiveness. Participants will leave with a clearer understanding of how language functions as a lever for change—and how to apply this lens within their own organization.

Au-delà des données agrégées : mesurer et comprendre la diversité des groupes de population au Canada

Fallsview Studio A, 3rd floor | 3:45 - 4:45 | Immigration, Diversity, and Intercultural Interaction / Immigration, diversité et interaction interculturelle canadienne | Panel discussion / Discussion en panel

This session explores how Statistics Canada measures ethnocultural diversity through key concepts, including ethnic origin, population group, religion and immigration. Through examples on education, employment and income, presenters will show how disaggregated and intersectional analysis moves beyond broad averages to identify meaningful differences within and across racialized population groups. Participants will gain practical insight into how to leverage these data for their own research, policy and program needs.

Cette séance explore la manière dont Statistique Canada mesure la diversité ethnoculturelle à l'aide de concepts clés, notamment l'origine ethnique, le groupe de population, la religion et l'immigration. À partir d'exemples portant sur l'éducation, l'emploi et le revenu, les présentateurs montreront comment les analyses désagrégées et intersectionnelles permettent d'aller au-delà des moyennes générales afin de mettre en évidence des différences significatives au sein des groupes de population racisés. Les participants acquerront des connaissances pratiques sur la façon de tirer parti de ces données pour répondre à leurs propres besoins en matière de recherche, de politiques publiques et de programmes.

D5a* | Between Origin-State Recognition and Canadian Multiculturalism: Polish Diaspora Identity After the Global Extension of the Karta Polaka

Upper Fallsview Studio B, 5th floor | 3:45 - 4:45* | Immigration, Diversity, and Intercultural Interaction | Research or project presentation

This paper examines how Poland's Karta Polaka reshapes Polish diaspora identity in Canada after its global expansion. Focusing on origin-state recognition, multiculturalism, and belonging, it asks how symbolic and legal ties to Poland coexist with Canadian civic participation, intercultural trust, and integration in a diverse society today.

Upper Fallsview Studio B, 5th floor | 3:45 - 4:45* | Racism, Hate, Prejudice and the Challenge of Building Trust | Research or project presentation

Drawing on 60+ testimonial profiles gathered through the Voices in Exile project at the University of Ottawa, this session examines how transnational repression reshapes diaspora identity and erodes trust between exile communities and Canadian institutions. We present qualitative findings and policy recommendations for protecting activists-in-exile under Canada's diversity framework.

D6 | REDI (Reconciliation, Equity, Diversity and Inclusion) in Practice

Fallsview Studio B 3rd floor | 3:45 - 4:45 | Indigeneity, Identity Affirmation, and Reconciliation | Panel discussion

Trust is built through relationships. Bringing together Indigenous staff members and an ally leader from The Momentum Centre (TMC) this panel explores how Indigenous identity, cultural connection and relationship-based practices strengthen community trust, creating reconciliation paths, cross-cultural competency and economic inclusion. Presenters will discuss how authentic involvement, cultural acceptance, accountability, and reciprocity gain trust while exploring what meaningful allyship within organizations can look like. Canada remains unsure how to transform the talk of reconciliation into meaningful action. This session offers strategies for strengthening relationships across communities and advancing reconciliation through everyday practice.

D7 | Shaping Tomorrow: Canada's Identity in a Time of Change

Strategy Room 3 5th floor | 3:45 - 4:45 | Canada's Narrative at a Moment of Uncertainty | Roundtable discussion

As Canada navigates a period of social, economic, and demographic change, questions of identity, belonging, and national direction are becoming increasingly important. This session explores how evolving regional perspectives, generational shifts, migration patterns, and changing public discourse are influencing Canada's collective narrative. Participants will reflect on the challenges and opportunities emerging from this moment of uncertainty and examine how inclusion, dialogue, and shared values can strengthen social cohesion, foster resilience, and help shape a more connected and adaptable future for Canada.

Plenary Session 2

9:15 - 10:30 | Great room B&C 3rd floor

Challenges to Unity, Belonging, and the Canadian Experience

Taking place just days after Quebec's provincial election and Alberta's October 19 referenda, this plenary offers a timely opportunity to reflect on what these developments may reveal about the future of Canada and the evolving state of the federation.

Bringing together voices from across the country, the session will explore how Canadians experience identity, coexistence, and belonging in an era marked by political polarization, regional tensions, demographic change, and competing visions of the country's future. Through dialogue and reflection, speakers will examine several defining relationships within Canada: Indigenous and non-Indigenous peoples; Quebec, Alberta, and the rest of Canada; French- and English-speaking communities; and the continuing evolution of multiculturalism and pluralism.

The discussion will consider how recent political developments intersect with broader debates about federalism, autonomy, citizenship, and shared values, while asking whether a common Canadian narrative remains capable of sustaining solidarity and democratic life in a diverse federation.

Session Chair:

Nketti Johnston-Taylor
CEO, The Centre for Newcomers Calgary, Alberta

Speakers:

Séance plénière 2

9:15 - 10:30 | Great room B&C 3e étage

Rétablir la confiance : l'état des relations intergroupes en Amérique du Nord

Organisée quelques jours seulement après les élections provinciales au Québec et les référendums du 19 octobre en Alberta, cette séance plénière offre une occasion opportune de réfléchir à ce que ces événements peuvent révéler sur l'avenir du Canada et l'évolution de la fédération.

Réunissant des voix de partout au pays, cette séance explorera la manière dont les Canadiens vivent leur identité, leur coexistence et leur sentiment d'appartenance à une époque marquée par la polarisation politique, les tensions régionales, les changements démographiques et des visions concurrentes de l'avenir du pays. Par le dialogue et la réflexion, les conférenciers examineront plusieurs relations déterminantes au sein du Canada : celles entre les peuples autochtones et non autochtones; entre le Québec, l'Alberta et le reste du Canada; entre les communautés francophones et anglophones; ainsi que l'évolution continue du multiculturalisme et du pluralisme.

La discussion portera sur la manière dont les récents développements politiques s'inscrivent dans les débats plus larges sur le fédéralisme, l'autonomie, la citoyenneté et les valeurs communes, tout en se demandant si un récit canadien commun demeure capable de soutenir la solidarité et la vie démocratique au sein d'une fédération diversifiée.

Présidente de la séance:

Nketti Johnston-Taylor
Directrice générale, Centre for Newcomers, Calgary, Alberta

Intervenants:

L'honorable Stéphane Dion

E1 | Alberta's Immigration Referendum: Implications for Federalism and Provincial Policy

Strategy Room 3, 5th floor | 11:00 - 12:00 | Canada's Narrative at a Moment of Uncertainty | Roundtable discussion

This roundtable will examine what the outcome of Alberta's referendum questions on immigration could mean for the province's immigration policies, programs and relationship with federal immigration authorities. It will consider the potential consequences for immigrant selection, settlement services, labour-market priorities and the division of federal–provincial responsibilities. The discussion will also explore whether Alberta's approach could influence other provinces, generate demands for greater provincial control over immigration, and reshape Canada's broader immigration system.

E2 | Building Bridges in an Age of Polarization: Talking Across Differences?

Strategy Room 2, 5th floor | 11:00 - 12:00 | Immigration, Diversity, and Intercultural Interaction | Roundtable discussion

At a time when international conflicts increasingly spill into domestic relationships and public debate, the prospects for bridge building can appear increasingly fragile. Panelists will consider whether bridge building requires consensus—or whether its more realistic and important objective is learning how to disagree, sometimes profoundly, while maintaining mutual respect and keeping the possibility of dialogue open.

E4 | Beyond the Organization: Building Strategic Partnerships with FARMS and Consulates to Reach Migrant Workers

Temporary Migration and Migrant Worker Support Stream

Fallsview Studio C
3rd floor | 11:00 - 12:00 | Immigration, Diversity, and Intercultural Interaction | Panel discussion

Reaching temporary foreign workers at scale requires going beyond direct service delivery. This panel examines how strategic partnerships with FARMS — a key agricultural employer liaison — and Mexican and Guatemalan consulates and embassies create direct pathways to workers and employers alike, expanding program reach, building institutional trust, and improving outcomes across Ontario.

E5 | Bridging Worlds: Cultural Brokers at the Frontlines of Equity, Access, and System Change

Upper Fallsview
Studio B
5th floor | 11:00 - 12:00 | Immigration, Diversity, and Intercultural Interaction | Roundtable discussion

This engaging and thought-provoking session blends storytelling, real-world case studies, and practical frameworks. It broadens the conversation beyond education to include pre-arrival experiences and interactions with justice/legal, medical, government, post-secondary, and other systems. The session also asks critical questions about the challenges newcomers face, what meaningful systemic change requires, and how institutions can move forward in coordinated ways rather than in circular motion. It also situates Cultural Brokering within broader global and historical contexts, including: colonial legacies and their ongoing impact; Migration, displacement, and identity; Competing narratives of land, belonging, and power.

Participants will leave with a deeper understanding of how Cultural Brokers contribute not only to individual outcomes, but to sustained system transformation, social justice, and more coordinated pathways forward for institutions serving newcomers and communities. All contributing to Canada's well-being as a nation.

E8 | Building Trust Through Safe and Inclusive Workplaces for Newcomers

Strategy Room 1, 5th floor | 11:00 - 12:00 | Racism, Hate, Prejudice and the Challenge of Building Trust | Practical workshop

How do we build safer, inclusive workplaces for newcomers facing discrimination and exploitation? This presentation highlights SJNC's Sexual Harassment in the Workplace Project and nCourage's survivor-centred, trauma-informed approach to human trafficking. Together, they demonstrate how culturally responsive education, technology, employer engagement, and early intervention strengthen prevention and advance workplace equity.

E10* | From Employment to Belonging: Reimagining Workforce Integration as a Pathway to Dignity and Community

Upper Fallsview Studio A 5th floor | 11:00 - 12:00* | Immigration, Diversity, and Intercultural Interaction | Panel discussion

E10a* | Beyond Employment: Building Stability, Dignity, and Belonging for Asylum Claimants in Peel

When an asylum claimant secures employment, the ripple effects go far beyond a paycheque — greater housing stability, reduced reliance on social supports, deeper roots in community, and a renewed sense of dignity and purpose.

This session takes participants inside the Asylum Claimant Program in Peel Region — a partnership between the Region, COSTI and Polycultural Immigrant & Community Services — to explore how coordinated, cross-agency employment supports are turning economic opportunity into lasting stability for newcomers, while strengthening the local economy that welcomes them.

Vithieyah Atputharajah, General Manager, Hostel Services, COSTI

E10b* | Immigration and Canada's Demographic Future: Rethinking Bridging Programs for a Talent-Hungry Economy

Canada's labour force isn't just growing through immigration anymore — soon, it will grow only through immigration. Yet a paradox persists: employers can't fill critical roles while thousands of internationally trained professionals sit on the sidelines, held back by credential gaps, unfamiliar workplace norms, thin professional networks, and mismatched expectations.

This session makes the case for a fundamental shift: bridging programs are no longer just a settlement service — they're becoming Canada's frontline workforce development strategy. What we'll explore: Scaling capacity to serve a growing wave of internationally trained professionals; Targeting high-demand, skills-short sectors like cybersecurity; Building deeper employer partnerships that turn credentials into careers- faster.

Raajkumar Kannan, Regional Manager, Employment Services, COSTI
Himanshu Gulia, Shield Identity, Founder & CEO

E10c* | Beyond the Handshake: Building Youth Belonging Through Mentorship and Professional Networks

This session unpacks how intentional mentorship and networking don't just open doors for young people — they help youth walk through them with confidence. Drawing on real-world examples and hard-won lessons, we'll explore how to design relationship-based initiatives that connect youth with professionals, expand their networks, build social capital, and translate into real workforce outcomes. Walk away with practical strategies you can adapt for your own programs.

F5 | Understanding Collaborative Governance Through Local Immigration Partnerships.

Upper Fallsview
Studio B
5th floor | 1:15 - 2:15 | Immigration, Diversity, and Intercultural Interaction | Case study or best practice session

Governance in Local Immigration Partnerships can be understood as an innovative hybrid form of collaborative, place-based, and network governance, uniquely suited to addressing the complexity of immigrant settlement and integration at the local level in both Anglophone and Francophone sectors. Drawing on existing research and practice, this presentation examines how these governance dimensions intersect in practice. This hybrid model reflects broader transformations in public administration and migration governance, characterized by decentralized responsibility, increased involvement of non-state actors, and an emphasis on local responsiveness. Rather than signaling a withdrawal of the state, this paradigm repositions it as an enabler and coordinator, with federal oversight complemented by locally driven, context-specific strategies.

F6 | Policy and Practice to Addressing Racism and Discrimination by Immigrant and Refugee Families

Fallsview Studio B
3rd floor | 1:15 - 2:15 | Immigration, Diversity, and Intercultural Interaction | Case study or best practice session

Racism and discrimination continue to shape how immigrant and refugee families access essential services, often leading to exclusion and inequitable outcomes. F7 | From Festival to Framework: A Community Membership Model Advancing Interculturalism, Community Resilience, and EDIAR

Upper Fallsview Studio A 5th floor | 1:15 - 2:15 | Immigration, Diversity, and Intercultural Interaction | Educational lecture or keynote talk

This session explores how Bridges Niagara's ethnocultural membership model—rooted in its 1970 incorporation and expressed through the 58-year legacy of the Niagara Folk Arts Festival—has evolved into a powerful framework for advancing interculturalism, dismantling systemic barriers, and responding to refugee crises. By connecting cultural celebration with service delivery, this grassroots model has shaped regional identity, strengthened newcomer inclusion, and operationalized EDIAR in both everyday programming and emergency response contexts. F8 | Immigration, Sustainability, and Social Cohesion: Preparing Canada's Workforce for a Changing Future

Strategy Room 7 5th floor | 1:15 - 2:15 | Immigration, Diversity, and Intercultural Interaction | Case study or best practice session

Canada is experiencing major demographic, economic, and social change. As communities navigate conversations around identity, belonging, sustainability, and workforce needs, questions emerge: How can Canada build a sustainable future while strengthening social cohesion? What role can immigrant talent play in economic resilience and innovation?

This session explores the intersection of immigration, workforce development, sustainability, and social harmony. Panelists from settlement, industry, and workforce sectors will discuss inclusive pathways into emerging industries, barriers newcomers face, and collaborative strategies that support economic participation, community engagement, belonging, and public trust during transformation periods

F10 | Building Bridges between Migration Work and Health: Connecting Migrant Agricultural Workers to Community Health Services Across Ontario

Temporary Migration and Migrant Worker Support Stream

Fallsview Studio C
3rd floor | 1:15 - 2:15 | Immigration, Diversity, and Intercultural Interaction | Panel discussion

Migrant or temporary foreign agricultural workers face significant barriers to healthcare access — language, mobility, service structure, and unfamiliarity with Canadian systems, among others. In addition, the high-hazard nature of their work requires health care services to consider and understand workplace exposures, the work relatedness of injuries and illnesses, and how the immigration status of these workers, tied to their work, can affect treatment and prevention. This panel explores how community health organizations are building trusted, accessible health services and supports for migrant workers in Ontario and working to address the intersections of migration, work, and health.

Eduardo Huesca, Occupational Health Clinics for Ontario Workers (OHCOW)

G1 | Trauma-Informed Practice For Service Providers In The Settlement Sector

Strategy Room 1
5th floor | 2:45 - 3:15 | Immigration, Diversity, and Intercultural Interaction | Practical workshop

This workshop draws on Pacific Immigrant Resources Society's (PIRS) experience working with immigrant and refugee women since 1975. Participants will be introduced to key competencies for becoming a trauma-informed service provider by learning the fundamentals of trauma, its impact, and exploring the approach for working with clients pioneered by PIRS.

Fey Laffitte, Pacific Immigrant Resources Society (PIRS)

G2 | Transmission intergénérationnelle du français dans les familles d'origine immigrante

Fallsview Studio A
3e étage | 2:45 - 3:15 | L'avenir de la francophonie canadienne | Présentation de recherche

Alors que l'immigration francophone contribue au rétablissement du poids démographique des CFSM, la présente recherche interroge la capacité des immigrants francophones à soutenir la pérennité du français. Elle analyse la transmission intergénérationnelle du français au sein des familles issues de l'immigration, en mettant en lumière les dynamiques linguistiques et d'immigration.

Émilie Lavoie, Immigration, Réfugiés et Citoyenneté Canada

G3 | Mapping the Global Francophonie: Skills Corridors and the Demographic Future of French Canada

Upper Fallsview
Studio A
5th floor | 2:45 - 3:15 | The Future of Canada's Francophonie | Research or project presentation

Meeting Francophone immigration targets requires a clear understanding of the global distribution of French-speaking talent. This session shares findings from ICTC's global supply analysis of Francophone and bilingual ICT professionals, highlighting which migration pathways, recruitment approaches, and retention strategies are best positioned to support the long-term vitality and economic participation of Francophone communities outside of Quebec in Canada.

Maryna Ivus, The Information and Communications Technology Council (ICTC)

G4 | How to Support Survivors of Female Genital Mutilation Living in Canada

Fallsview Studio C
3rd floor | 2:45 - 3:15 | Immigration, Diversity, and Intercultural Interaction | Educational lecture or keynote talk

Current estimates suggest between 95,000 and 161,000 girls and women living in Canada have either undergone female genital mutilation/cutting or are at risk. This session focuses on the lived experiences of those women and girls and how frontline service providers in Canada can support their needs from a trauma-informed, culturally sensitive approach.

G5 | Newcomer Youth in the Classroom: A Digital Platform to Support High School Students

Strategy Room 3, 5th floor | 2:45 - 3:15 | Rethinking the Language of Diversity | Practical workshop

The aim of this project is to showcase a free digital platform entitled “Newcomer Youth in the Classroom”. This platform was designed to allow for in-depth, multi-layered, contextual understandings of newcomer experiences throughout the process of school integration. During our presentation, we will display how the platform can be used to train providers to incorporate multicultural and diverse newcomer perspectives in their classrooms and communities, and to facilitate dialogue between newcomer and non-newcomer secondary students. The platform is also accompanied by a "how to" guide that includes instructions for navigating the content. The content of the digital platform was informed by ten years of qualitative and arts-based research.

G6 | Psychological Responses of Religious Refugees to Persecution and Displacement

Strategy Room 5, 5th floor | 2:45 - 3:15 | History of Immigration and Refugees in Canada | Research or project presentation

This presentation reveals refugees’ experiences of persecution before and during migration based on analysis of 52 articles. Drawing from global examples, we explore responses rooted in refugees’ cultural and religious meaning systems. Our approach supports the case for honouring their historical origins in clinical interventions, social supports, and asylum systems.

G7 | Closed and Opened Doors: Historical Perspectives on Exclusion and Inclusion in Canadian Immigration

Strategy Room 7, 5th floor | 2:45 - 3:15 | History of Immigration and Refugees in Canada | Educational lecture or keynote talk

Throughout Canada’s history, immigration policies have excluded some groups and prioritized others. In this session, we will look at case studies of immigration including Jews fleeing Europe, the Vietnamese “boat people” crisis, and the Syrian Refugee crisis. Let’s explore how Canada’s history influences policy, services, and community life today.

G8 | How Ready Are Settlement Agencies to Meet the Needs of Older Adult Newcomers with Dementia?: Original Research from Saskatchewan

Upper Fallsview Studio B 5th floor | 2:45 - 3:15 | Immigration, Diversity, and Intercultural Interaction | Research or project presentation

In Canada, dementia is a public health issue on the rise. By 2050, the Alzheimer Society of Canada estimates that more than 1.7 million people will have dementia. The pending reality is even starker for Black and Asian communities. The Society predicts a 507% increase by only 2030 in the prevalence of dementia in Black communities and that 1 in every 4 people with dementia will be Asian by 2050. As Canada's population ages and older adults (60+) make up a larger share of the newcomer population, how are settlement agencies preparing to meet the needs of these clients? And which supports would they like to see established in the future?

Amber Parker, Saskatchewan Association of Immigration Settlement and Integration Agencies

G9 | Designing Belonging: Rethinking "Culture Fit" In The Integration Of Internationally Educated Nurses

Strategy Room 2 5th floor | 2:45 - 3:15 | Immigration, Diversity, and Intercultural Interaction | Roundtable discussion

Internationally educated nurses bring clinical skills but lack access to unwritten workplace norms. This session presents Path2Practice and its practical toolkits, integrating cultural awareness, communication, and community-building. It offers actionable strategies to support inclusive integration, address bias, and shift from "culture fit" toward shared understanding and belonging in healthcare workplaces.
