Mot des coprésidents du Congrès

His Excellency Robert Rae

Ambassador and Permanent Representative of Canada to the United Nations in New York

Ambassadeur et représentant permanent du Canada auprès des Nations unies à New York

On behalf of the conference organizing committee, it is with great pleasure that I extend a warm welcome to delegates of the 26th Metropolis Canada Conference—Our Immigration System: The Way Forward. It is an honour to host this year's conference in Montreal, a city rich in history and culture. We are grateful to gather on the traditional territories of the Kanien'kehà:ka, who have been stewards of this land for thousands of years. The Metropolis Canada Conference continues to be a key forum to discuss the issues and challenges facing immigration in Canada. As the world faces unprecedented numbers of people on the move, these positive discussions are critical to building strong social bonds and safeguarding community well-being. I am certain this year's conference will continue this legacy and help us improve immigration in our country. I wish all participants a rewarding and thought-provoking experience. Thank you for your continued efforts in the immigration field.

Au nom du comité organisateur de la conférence, c'est avec grand plaisir que je souhaite la bienvenue aux délégués du 26e congrès de Metropolis Canada - Notre système d'immigration : La voie à suivre. C'est un honneur d'accueillir la conférence de cette année à Montréal, une ville riche en histoire et en culture. Nous sommes reconnaissants de nous réunir sur les territoires traditionnels des Kanien'kehà:ka, qui sont les gardiens de cette terre depuis des milliers d'années. Le congrès de Metropolis Canada continue d'être un forum important pour discuter des questions et des défis auxquels est confrontée l'immigration au Canada. Alors que le monde est confronté à un nombre sans précédent de personnes en mouvement, ces discussions positives sont essentielles pour tisser des liens sociaux solides et préserver le bien-être des communautés. Je suis certain que la conférence de cette année perpétuera cet héritage et nous aidera à améliorer l'immigration dans notre pays. Je souhaite à tous les participants une expérience enrichissante et stimulante. Je vous remercie pour vos efforts continus dans le domaine de l'immigration.

Managing Director and Head of Strategic Communications and Global Government Affairs, PSP Investments, Montréal, Québec, Minister of Immigration and Cultural Communities, Government of Quebec, 2007-2010

Directrice générale et responsable de la communication stratégique et des affaires gouvernementales mondiales, Investissements PSP, Montréal, Québec, Ancienne députée de l'Assemblée nationale du Québec, Ministre de l'Immigration et des Communautés culturelles, Gouvernement du Québec, 2007-2010

I warmly welcome you all to the 26th Metropolis Canada Conference – Our Immigration System: The Way Forward here in the vibrant city of Montreal. A city that has long been forged by immigrant voices coming from around the globe in search of stability and new opportunities and making significant contributions to the economic and social fabric of Montreal.

As we gather over the next few days, migration remains a pressing issue on the global stage. Amid these growing challenges, it is important that we manage these difficult conversations in a collaborative and constructive manner.

Driven by a common purpose, the conference continues to be a pivotal platform for tackling emerging immigration issues within Canada. These dialogues are essential to shaping a more inclusive and welcoming country for all.

I wish all participants an insightful and engaging experience. Thank you for your continuous effort to improve immigration in our country.

C'est avec grand plaisir que je vous souhaite la bienvenue au 26e congrès de Metropolis Canada - Notre système d'immigration : La voie à suivre, ici, dans la ville dynamique de Montréal. Une ville qui a longtemps été forgée par les voix d'immigrants venus du monde entier à la recherche de stabilité et de nouvelles opportunités et qui ont grandement contribué au tissu économique et social de Montréal.

Alors que nous nous réunissons au cours des prochains jours, la migration demeure une question pressante sur la scène mondiale. Face à ces défis croissants, il est important que nous entretenions ces conversations difficiles de manière collaborative et constructive.

Animé par un objectif commun, le congrès continue d'être une plateforme incontournable pour aborder les questions émergentes en matière d'immigration au sein de notre pays. Ces dialogues sont essentiels pour façonner un pays plus inclusif et plus accueillant pour tous.

Je souhaite à tous les participants une expérience enrichissante et engageante. Je vous remercie de vos efforts constants pour améliorer la situation de l'immigration dans notre pays.

Minister of Immigration, Refugees and Citizenship, Member of Parliament for Ville-Marie—Le Sud-Ouest—Île-des-Soeurs

Ministre de l'Immigration, des Réfugiés et de la Citoyenneté, Député de Ville-Marie-Le Sud-Ouest-Île-des-Soeurs

On behalf of the Government of Canada, I extend my warmest greetings to everyone participating in this year's National Metropolis Conference. This is the 26th anniversary of this national conference, and that is clearly a milestone worth celebrating.

For more than a quarter century now, this conference has given us the chance to explore the issues and opportunities facing immigration in Canada.

The title of this year's conference, "Our Immigration System: The Way Forward", is very much aligned with the engagement IRCC undertook last year as part of its Strategic Immigration Review. That resulted in the public report, "An Immigration System for Canada's Future".

The themes set out in that report—creating a more welcoming experience for newcomers, aligning immigration with labour market needs, and developing a comprehensive and coordinated growth plan—resonate broadly and give us all a sense of direction for the future.

Our world-class immigration system must continue to modernize as we seek to best serve Canadians and newcomers.

We now have the opportunity to develop innovative solutions that include a commitment to diversity, inclusivity, anti-racism and equity.

This conference has established a tradition of comprehensive discussion and innovative ideas about some of the most significant and pressing issues facing our nation.

You draw together experts from all across the country, who work hard to understand the trends and issues that can inform public policies and programs.

We are pleased to be part of this conference, and we wish all participants a rewarding and thought-provoking experience. Thank you for your hard work and continued efforts in the immigration field.

The Honourable Marc Miller

Minister of Immigration, Refugees and Citizenship, Member of Parliament for Ville-Marie—Le Sud-Ouest—Île-des-Soeurs

Ministre de l'Immigration, des Réfugiés et de la Citoyenneté, Député de Ville-Marie-Le Sud-Ouest-Île-des-Soeurs

Au nom du gouvernement du Canada, je salue chaleureusement tous les participants à la Conférence nationale Metropolis de cette année. Il s'agit du 26^e anniversaire de cette conférence nationale, et c'est manifestement une étape qui mérite d'être célébrée.

Depuis plus d'un quart de siècle, cette conférence nous donne la chance d'étudier les enjeux et les occasions en matière d'immigration au Canada.

L'immigration remonte loin dans l'histoire du Canada, et les Canadiens sont clairement favorables à l'accueil des nouveaux arrivants qui contribueront à construire notre avenir commun.

Le titre de la conférence de cette année, « Notre système d'immigration : La voie à suivre », est tout à fait conforme à l'engagement pris par IRCC l'année dernière dans le cadre de son Examen stratégique de l'immigration. Cet examen a débouché sur notre rapport public intitulé « Un système d'immigration pour l'avenir du Canada ».

Les thèmes exposés dans ce rapport – c'est-à-dire créer une expérience plus accueillante pour les nouveaux arrivants, aligner l'immigration sur les besoins du marché du travail, et élaborer un plan de croissance global et coordonné – trouvent un large écho et nous donnent à tous un sens de l'orientation pour l'avenir.

Notre système d'immigration de renommée mondiale doit continuer à se moderniser pour mieux servir les Canadiens et les nouveaux arrivants.

Nous avons maintenant l'occasion de développer des solutions innovantes qui comprennent un engagement en faveur de la diversité, de l'inclusion, de la lutte contre le racisme et de l'équité.

Cette conférence a établi une tradition de discussions approfondies et d'idées novatrices sur certains des enjeux les plus importants et les plus pressants auxquels notre pays est confronté.

Vous rassemblez des experts de tout le pays, qui travaillent avec acharnement pour comprendre les tendances et les enjeux qui peuvent éclairer les politiques d'intérêt public et les programmes.

Le gouvernement du Canada est heureux de participer à cette conférence, et nous souhaitons de tout cœur à tous les participants une expérience enrichissante et stimulante. Nous vous remercions pour votre excellent travail et vos efforts continus dans le domaine de l'immigration.

Mayor of Montreal

Chaque année, une grande majorité des personnes qui immigrent au Québec choisissent de s'établir à Montréal et contribuent à façonner le caractère unique et diversifié de notre ville.

Pour la Ville de Montréal, il est primordial d'offrir aux nouveaux arrivants, comme à l'ensemble de la population, des services et des possibilités équitables. Nous y œuvrons sans cesse, notamment au sein du Bureau d'intégration des nouveaux arrivants à Montréal (BINAM).

Nous soutenons également des organismes qui ont pour mission l'accueil des nouveaux arrivants et nous avons à cœur la participation pleine et entière des citoyennes et des citoyens à toutes les sphères de la vie montréalaise.

La Ville de Montréal travaille au quotidien à refléter la diversité de la population au sein de son personnel et à lutter contre le racisme et les discriminations systémiques. Nous nous sommes ainsi engagés à accroître la représentativité et à faciliter l'accès des nouveaux arrivants à tous les types de postes au sein de notre organisation.

Montréal est une ville solidaire, égalitaire et inclusive. Nous continuerons de travailler sans relâche pour que chacune et chacun puisse évoluer, s'épanouir et travailler dans la dignité.

Je félicite et je remercie l'équipe organisatrice de cet important événement.

Je vous souhaite de belles rencontres et des échanges fructueux.

Every year, a large majority of people who immigrate to Quebec choose to settle in Montréal, helping to shape the unique and diverse character of our city.

For the city of Montréal, it's essential to offer newcomers, like the general population, equitable services and opportunities. We are constantly striving to achieve this, notably through the Bureau d'intégration des nouveaux arrivants à Montréal (BINAM).

We also support organizations whose mission is to welcome newcomers, and we are committed to the full participation of citizens in all spheres of Montréal life.

The city of Montréal works daily to reflect the diversity of the population within its workforce and to fight against racism and systemic discrimination. We are thus committed to increasing representativeness and facilitating access for newcomers to all types of positions within our organization.

Montréal is a city of solidarity, equality and inclusion. We will continue to work tirelessly to ensure that everyone can grow, develop and work in dignity.

I congratulate and thank the organizing team of this important event.

I wish you all the best in your meetings and fruitful exchanges.

Mot de Bienvenue

Jack Jedwab
CEO and Director, ACS-Metropolis
PDG et Directeur, AEC-Metropolis

Esteemed colleagues,

As we gather here in Montreal for the 26th Metropolis Canada Conference, the question on many minds is: What is the way forward for Canada's immigration system?

Just over a year ago, the November 2022 multiyear federal Government plan called for increased immigration levels, buoyed by sufficient public support. However, recent surveys have revealed a significant shift in opinion, with most Canadians now expressing concerns about the influx of immigrants into the country. These concerns range from heightened living costs and housing affordability to global instability and media portrayals of migrants seeking entry into our Southern neighbor's borders. Canada is not alone in grappling with these challenges; other immigrant-receiving countries are also reflecting on their paths forward in these challenging times.

This year's Metropolis Canada conference offers us a platform to delve into these issues deeply. Through workshops, round tables, and posters, we aim to gain insight into the most effective ways to navigate the future. Our plenary program will feature leading experts discussing the impact of immigration on our demographic future, the influence of technology on immigration systems, and the analysis of global migration challenges. Moreover, the Metropolis Institute will be convening migration experts across French-speaking countries via Metropolis Francophonie Mondiale in the days leading up to the conference.

The Metropolis Canada Conference has become the largest annual gathering for the settlement sector. Our sector serves as a crucial barometer for decision-makers and the public about the requirements for successful migration integration and settlement. It remains pivotal in advocating for the concerns and needs of migrants nationwide. Let us pledge our support to this sector through knowledge sharing, networking, innovation, and advocacy as we collectively reflect on the changes necessary to chart our course forward.

I extend my gratitude to our co-chairs, the Honorable Robert Rae and Yolande James, as well as our numerous partners and sponsors, particularly Immigration, Refugees and Citizenship Canada. Special thanks go to our exceptional conference organizing team at ACS-Metropolis, led by James Ondrick and supported by Emma Proux, Shania Bramble, Raissa Sintcheu, and my esteemed colleague Caroline Guimond.

Let us engage in meaningful dialogue and collaborative efforts to shape a more inclusive and sustainable immigration system for Canada's future.

Thank you.

Chers collègues,

Alors que nous nous réunissons ici à Montréal pour la 26e conférence de Metropolis Canada, la question qui préoccupe de nombreux esprits est la suivante : quelle est la voie à suivre pour le système d'immigration du Canada ? Quelle est la voie à suivre pour le système d'immigration du Canada ?

Il y a un peu plus d'un an, le plan pluriannuel du gouvernement fédéral de novembre 2022 prévoyait une augmentation des niveaux d'immigration, avec un soutien suffisant de l'opinion publique. Toutefois, des enquêtes récentes ont révélé un changement d'opinion significatif, la plupart des Canadiens exprimant désormais des inquiétudes quant à l'afflux d'immigrants dans le pays. Ces préoccupations vont de l'augmentation du coût de la vie et de l'accessibilité des logements à l'instabilité mondiale, en passant par l'image que donnent les médias des migrants cherchant à franchir les frontières de nos voisins du Sud. Le Canada n'est pas le seul à être confronté à ces défis ; d'autres pays qui accueillent des immigrants réfléchissent également à la voie à suivre en ces temps difficiles.

La conférence de Metropolis Canada de cette année nous offre une plateforme pour approfondir ces questions. Par le biais d'ateliers, de tables rondes et d'affiches, nous visons à mieux comprendre les façons les plus efficaces de naviguer dans l'avenir. Notre programme de séances plénières réunira d'éminents experts qui discuteront de l'impact de l'immigration sur notre avenir démographique, de l'influence de la technologie sur les systèmes d'immigration et de l'analyse des défis mondiaux en matière de migration. En outre, l'Institut Metropolis réunira des experts en migration des pays francophones dans le cadre de Metropolis Francophonie Mondiale dans les jours précédant la conférence.

La conférence de Metropolis Canada est devenue le plus grand rassemblement annuel du secteur de l'établissement. Notre secteur est un baromètre essentiel pour les décideurs et le public en ce qui concerne les conditions d'une intégration et d'un établissement réussis des migrants. Il joue un rôle essentiel dans la défense des préoccupations et des besoins des migrants à l'échelle nationale. Engageons-nous à soutenir ce secteur par le biais du partage des connaissances, de la mise en réseau, de l'innovation et de la défense des intérêts, alors que nous réfléchissons collectivement aux changements nécessaires pour tracer notre voie vers l'avenir.

Je tiens à exprimer ma gratitude à nos coprésidents, l'honorable Robert Rae et Yolande James, ainsi qu'à nos nombreux partenaires et sponsors, en particulier Immigration, Réfugiés et Citoyenneté Canada. Je remercie tout particulièrement l'exceptionnelle équipe d'organisation de la conférence à l'AEC-Métropolis, dirigée par James Ondrick et soutenue par Emma Proux, Shania Bramble, Raissa Sintcheu et mon estimée collègue Caroline Guimond.

Engageons un dialogue constructif et des efforts de collaboration afin de façonner un système d'immigration plus inclusif et plus durable pour l'avenir du Canada.

Je vous remercie de votre attention.

La Fondation canadienne des relations raciales est une société d'État qui s'est engagée à lutter contre le racisme au Canada. Nous travaillons à renforcer le tissu social au Canada en aidant, habilitant et rassemblant les groupes et les organismes communautaires grâce à des subventions, des services et un réseau de partenaires dans le milieu de la recherche et dans les secteurs privé et communautaire.

WHAT WE DO / CE QUE NOUS FAISONS

- We support communities through funding anti-racism projects and events
 - We elevate public discourse on anti-racism through partnerships and education
 - We move public policy related to systemic anti-racism and hate
 - We help municipalities develop anti-racism programs
- Nous aidons les communautés en finançant des projets et des événements de lutte contre le racisme
 - Nous élevons le discours public sur la lutte contre le racisme par le biais de partenariats et de l'éducation
 - Nous faisons avancer les politiques gouvernementales liées à la lutte systémique contre le racisme et la haine
 - Nous aidons les municipalités à développer des programmes de lutte contre le racisme

Explaining the Global Migration Challenge

Around the globe, rising political, economic, and social instability has seen increasing numbers of refugees and other migrants, often desperately in search of a new home. The continuing flow of migrants constitutes one of the most important challenges facing the world. Immigrant-receiving countries seem either unable and/or unwilling to effectively respond to the many dire situations that migrants encounter. What should Canada and other immigrant-receiving countries do to address the situation? Plenary speakers will discuss strategies aimed at addressing the crisis and how Canada can best contribute to its resolution.

- Session Chair: Esther Benjamin, CEO and Executive Director, World Education Services (WES)
- Jean-Christophe Dumont, Head of the International Migration Division, Direction for Employment, Labour and Social Affairs, Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD), Paris, France
- Adam Hunter, Deputy Assistant Secretary for Immigration Policy at U.S. Department of Homeland Security, Washington, DC, USA
- Dr. Harpreet S. Kochhar, Deputy Minister, Immigration, Refugees and Citizenship Canada
- Mayu Avila, Co-Chair of Metropolis Americas and former Foreign Affairs Minister, El Salvador

Expliquer le défi mondial de la migration

Partout dans le monde, l'instabilité politique, économique et sociale croissante a entraîné une augmentation du nombre de réfugiés et de migrants, souvent à la recherche désespérée d'une nouvelle patrie. Le flux continu de migrants constitue l'un des défis les plus importants auxquels le monde est confronté. Les pays d'accueil semblent incapables et/ou peu désireux de répondre efficacement aux nombreuses situations désastreuses que rencontrent les migrants. Que devraient faire le Canada et les autres pays d'accueil pour remédier à cette situation ? Les intervenants de cette séance plénière discuteront des stratégies visant à résoudre la crise et de la manière dont le Canada peut contribuer au mieux à sa résolution.

- Modératrice de la séance : Esther Benjamin, PDG et directrice exécutive, World Education Services (WES)
- Jean-Christophe Dumont, Chef de la Division des migrations internationales, Direction de l'emploi, du travail et des affaires sociales, OCDE
- Adam Hunter, Secrétaire adjoint à la politique d'immigration au ministère américain de la sécurité intérieure

Resettling Realities: Navigating Challenges and Building Bridges for Migrant and Refugee Reintegration

This workshop is for a diverse audience, catering to the needs of various professionals invested in immigrants and refugee welfare. With combined personal and professional experiences as immigrants, trauma therapists, business owners and researchers, the presenters provide a unique perspective on the importance of trauma informed services and implementation in both the social services and private sectors. This presentation will address the different stages of the resettlement of new migrants and refugees and associated challenges. A blueprint of the resettlement needs in each stage and creative therapeutic techniques will be provided, so participants have practical tools and next steps

The Lived Experiences of Immigrants in Small and Mid-Sized Cities

Immigrants to Canada are increasingly moving beyond the metropolis to small and mid-sized cities. In many cases these cities are more affordable and can offer a better quality of life than larger urban centres. At the same time, it may be challenging to provide the infrastructure, employment opportunities, and social and cultural life that immigrants need or desire. This session foregrounds the lived experiences of immigrants settling in small and mid-sized cities across Canada. Together the presentations highlight key considerations for better supporting immigrants settling in non-metropolitan destinations.

Invisible Refugees: Lessons Learnt from Serving Asylum Seekers in Canada and Ideas to Spark Systems Change

Over the last few years, WES's philanthropic arm, Mariam Assefa Fund, has been supporting organizations across Canada focused on asylum seekers in terms of basic services, legal support, and changing perspectives to shift narratives and advance systems change. Recently, there has been significant increase in asylum seekers coming to Canada, as well as some policy changes, that have impacted the flow of asylum seekers and availability of supports.

WES Mariam Assefa Fund's grantee partners will discuss their experience in supporting asylum seekers, focusing on promising practices around support service provision, implications of recent policy changes, and approaches to reducing systematic barriers facing asylum seekers in Canada.

Homelessness, housing, and precarious migration: new challenges

IWe have seen over the past year a rise in homelessness for asylum seekers, non-status, and precarious migrants living in Montreal and Toronto. In the context of inflation and a housing crisis in both cities, this rise is a consequence of Canadian migration policies that fabricate precarity. This situation creates new challenges for a social service sector that is ill-equipped to help this clientele and is transferring the burden of responsibility onto community services. This roundtable assembles community service providers and a researcher who will shed light on public policies. The roundtable will generate an exchange of information about lessons learned and advocacy strategies.

Wraparound case management outcomes: Enhancing Quality of life by Empowering Survivors and upholding their dignity

The presentation tackles two vital issues. Firstly, it addresses the pressing matter of gender-based violence (GBV) with a focus on a comprehensive strategy for supporting traumatized women on their path to recovery. Insights are shared from hands-on experience in aiding GBV survivors, discussing empowering interventions, the multifaceted impact of GBV on mental health, trauma-informed approaches, and community-based initiatives fostering resilience.

Secondly, the presentation delves into the critical need for tailored wraparound case management strategies for seniors with disabilities. Emphasizing collaboration among professionals, caregivers, and community stakeholders, the goal is to create a platform for sharing insights, best practices, and innovative approaches to enhance the overall well-being of seniors. Exploration of effective wraparound case management modes, success stories, challenges, and interdisciplinary collaboration among healthcare providers, social workers, and community organizations is highlighted, aiming to advance the field of senior care for better quality support.

CARES: Co-designing for Anti-racism and Equity in Settlement

Settlement services help newcomers integrate into their new communities. Not all services are designed with their diverse needs in mind, and may even perpetuate systemic racism and discrimination either intentionally or unintentionally. CARES is a research project that re-imagines and co-designs settlement services with newcomers and practitioners. It aims to create settlement services that are anti-racist, equitable, and empowering for newcomers. This presentation will share the insights, learnings and co-design solutions that emerged, and recommendations by and for the settlement sector. The presentation will show how co-design can transform settlement services to be more inclusive, responsive, and respectful for newcomers.

Promising Practices & Lessons Learned: Integrated Community Services for Seniors Project

Integrated Community Services for Seniors Project (ICSS) aims to increase awareness and usage of health and social services among immigrant seniors and their caregivers, to support healthy and safe ageing at home. The lack of a regular healthcare provider creates gaps in accessing services for immigrant seniors and increases their risk of social isolation and poor health outcomes. This workshop shares how ICSS effectively bridged gaps in access to services among Chinese-speaking seniors in Richmond, BC, with 77% of seniors receiving daily support needs. The project shares lessons and promising practices in fostering collaboration between healthcare, seniors' services and immigrant communities to impact immigrant seniors' health outcomes.

Re-imagining Newcomer Journeys: Envisioning a seamless user experience from IRCC's Client Experience Platform (CXP) to the sector's services

We are at an exciting moment. The settlement sector has years of experience and knowledge of what works, and what doesn't, at a time when both the tools and vision exist to create a better settlement experience. IRCC is currently building a new Client Experience Platform (CXP), which will provide clients with a more user-friendly interface to access IRCC programs and services. SPOs across the country have proposed, and will soon be negotiating, the settlement programs that newcomers will access for the next 5 years. This panel brings together insight into the CXP, a demo of an enterprise solution that leverages responsible AI and labour market integration, and asks: what becomes possible when we begin to build a seamless experience for newcomers from the CXP to the online and offline services and programs you offer?

An effective analysis tool for determining the feasibility of a new project (Bilingual Session)

How many of those who have been involved in immigration for many years have come up against the obstacles innovative projects? How many have realized after the "Eureka! idea, it was impossible to go ahead with the project? With this in mind, we designed a strategic analysis model, which would eventually enable organizations to weigh up the influence, not only of stakeholders, but also of other external factors such as funding requirements and regulatory frameworks.

The theoretical basis of this tool comes from the analysis of the macro and micro environment analysis, very popular in management, illustrated by the famous PESTEL and SWOT1 models.

Outil d'analyse efficace pour déterminer la faisabilité d'un nouveau projet

Parmi ceux et celles qui œuvrent en immigration francophone depuis de nombreuses années, combien se sont heurtés aux obstacle entourant la réalisation de projets novateurs? Combien, après la phase « Euréka! » se sont rendu compte qu'en dépit d'une idée géniale, bénéfique et salubre, il était impossible de poursuivre la mise en œuvre du projet? C'est dans ce cadre que nous avons conçu un modèle d'analyse stratégique, qui permettrait éventuellement aux organismes de soupeser en amont l'influence, non seulement des parties prenantes, mais aussi d'autres facteurs externes comme les exigences relatives au financement et aux cadres réglementaires.

La base théorique de cet outil nous vient de l'analyse du macro et du micro environnement, très populaire en management et illustrée par les célèbres modèles PESTEL et SWOT.

Are we asking the right questions about immigration in Canada?

IRCC conducts research to enhance understanding of Canadian attitudes toward the issues surrounding citizenship and immigration. To that end, since 1996 it has undertaken annual tracking surveys to offer comparable data on immigration and related matters to help inform policies, programs, and services. Non-governmental organizations and academic researchers have also done considerable work on attitudes towards immigration. Over time, there have been changes to the questions being asked as well as an evolving focus on the demographic groups that are the object of attention when attempting to explain the factors influencing opinion on immigration. Are the questions that are regularly asked sufficient to help explain changing public views on immigration? Are there new questions that need to be considered for inclusion in surveys so as to help improve understanding? This workshop will bring together policy-makers and researchers to reflect on ideas for future surveys on immigration.

The increased influx of newcomers worldwide has urged communities to reconsider resettlement contexts. That said, the multimodal collection of newcomer stories we compiled through artwork, written, and spoken reflections echo the complexity of layers and individualities of newcomers' relationality with/in spaces and places. The arts contribute to creatively center newcomers' voices and personal experiences that can address the multifaceted challenges that newcomers often face in Canada.

Inclusive Healing: Addressing Specialized Services for Immigrant, Refugee and Newcomer Women Survivors of Violence

Immigrant women face formidable barriers in accessing essential services, compounded by the trauma of violence. These challenges, spanning human rights, employment, housing, and overall well-being, create complex hurdles in justice, economic stability, and individual or family needs. Barriers encompass isolation, economic instability, employment obstacles, silencing, and reluctance to seek help. Language barriers, low English proficiency, different cultural norms, and the fear of discrimination further isolate them from services. Pathways to High-Skilled International Talent

The diversification of Alberta's economic sectors calls for an increasing need for highly skilled professionals from various parts of the world. In this session, you are invited to come and learn more about the pathways to international talent attraction and retention. The workshop, hosted by Calgary Economic Development (CED), will include a presentation from Immigration Refugee Citizenship Canada's (IRCC) dedicated service channel highlighting the range of services available to companies established in Canada. Success stories will also be shared, illustrating the impact of these pathways.

Additionally,

the workshop will focus on Alberta's tech talent pathway, offering expedited processing for foreign workers currently employed by or holding a job offer from an Alberta-based tech industry employer in an eligible tech occupation. Mphasis, a multinational tech company will share their experience leveraging talent pathways while investing in Calgary, as well as their growth plans.

Exploring Inter-Ethnic Relationships in the Settlement Sector in Canada

This panel presents preliminary findings of a study on inter-ethnic group dynamics in Canada (Montreal, Sudbury, and Toronto). The study is conceptualized with a critical interrogation of the traditional assumption that newcomers to Canada are adapting to a Euro-American mainstream. Newcomers are interfacing with an ethno-culturally diverse reality, while indigenous communities and their lived realities have traditionally been ignored in immigration research. Our preliminary findings are based on data collected within the settlement services and our outreach to indigenous communities. These engagements and outreach have tremendous implications for the nation-building of the immigration agenda in Canada.

Engaging SMEs: National Business Networks and Local Design Perspectives

This panel discussion unveils insights and lessons derived from a nationwide SDI project addressing the underrepresentation of Small and Medium Enterprises in settlement and employment services programs. Six strategic partners collaborated across Canada with a goal to involve SMEs through participatory Design Labs fostering the co-creation and testing of effective engagement solutions. This initiative resulted in innovative prototypes aiming to advance talent acquisition and retention strategies within SMEs.

Panel speakers will share the local insights and key learnings working with SMEs and their distinctive challenges, needs, and barriers in accessing, hiring and retaining newcomer immigrant talent within their respective regions.

Client Empowerment and Employment Support in a Competitive Labour Market

In today's fierce labour market competition, the nexus between client empowerment and employment support emerges as a pivotal force. Our presentation delves into the dynamic strategies employed to empower newcomer clients, equipping them with the skills and confidence needed to navigate the competitive job landscape. By examining innovative approaches in employment support, the narrative explores the relationship between client empowerment and successful workforce integration. Through personalized coaching, skills enhancement, and tailored support systems, individuals are not merely job seekers but architects of their professional destinies. This discussion/workshop navigates the intersection where empowerment meets employment.

Inclusive Innovation of Immigrant Entrepreneurship

Immigrants contribute majorly to the Canadian economy. In the entrepreneurial context, immigrants in Canada account for 33% of all business owners with paid staff, in all sectors in Canada. There are over 600,000 self-employed immigrants across the country, and over 260,000 of them have paid employees (Government of Canada, 2022). Despite their contributions, immigrant entrepreneurs face institutional barriers, such as difficulties in accessing financial capital, as well as compounded barriers due to their intersecting social categories. Looking at barriers and enablers in place, this workshop discusses how to promote inclusive innovation in the ecosystem to support immigrant entrepreneurs.

Digital Transformation: People, Platforms, and Policies

The last few years have made it very clear that digital transformation in the settlement sector is not optional! This session will offer inspiration and concrete examples to organizations that want to use technology to strategically and sustainably evolve how they operate. Learn about the innovative staff roles that are building internal capacity and driving positive change. Get first-hand examples of emerging technologies that reduce manual effort and give frontline staff more time to engage with their clients. Hear how organizations have successfully woven these tools into program delivery. Join the discussion about how to fund digital transformation and the very real costs of not doing so.

Barrières et transformation de l'accès aux services sociaux et de santé pour les personnes migrantes sans assurance médicale au Québec

Depuis plus de 20 ans, des organismes communautaires, chercheur.se.s et clinicien.ne.s collaborent afin d'élargir l'accès aux soins pour les personnes migrantes sans assurance médicale (MSAM). Au cours des dernières années, des efforts collectifs de plaidoyer ont mené à un élargissement partiel de l'accès aux soins pour les personnes MSAM au Québec. Cet atelier présentera l'historique de ces efforts, les avancées et les défis actuels d'application des politiques d'accès sur le terrain. Finalement, les barrières d'accès aux soins qui perdurent malgré les transformations positives des dernières années seront illustrées, notamment en ce qui concerne les enfants et les femmes enceintes.

Understanding health impacts of the COVID-19 pandemic on immigrants and refugees using linked immigration and health data in British Columbia and Ontario

Immigration is a social and structural determinant of health. Immigrants and refugees in many high income countries experienced substantially increased risk of COVID-19 severe outcomes while also experiencing barriers to health care. The pandemic drove a rapid and widespread shift to virtual health care which may not have been accessible or appropriate for immigrants and refugees. We used linked immigration and health administrative data in the province of British Columbia to examine COVID-19 testing, primary care use, and mental health service use and in the province of Ontario to examine COVID-19 hospitalization, mortality, pre-mature mortality and COVID-19 vaccine coverage.

Building Community and Sector Capacity: The Innovating for Impact Project.

Innovating for Impact - Innover pour impacter (I2): it is both name and purpose. An IRCC-funded SDI project, I2 had a two-fold purpose: enhance newcomers' connections to the communities they've made their homes and to increase the capacity of organizations in the settlement sector to plan and execute innovative projects in their communities. We accomplished this through supporting pilot projects in the sector with the same two-fold goal.

In this presentation Project Leads from the I2 projects would like to share with you what we learned about project partnership and management, project ideating and planning, executing and evaluation.

National Cultural Brokers Project: Connecting Newcomer and Indigenous Stories through Cultural Brokering Practice

In Canada, migrants from across the world arrive on land rich with Indigenous cultural wealth, in a nation working to create equitable systems where all can thrive.

Cultural Brokering is a human-centred practice needed whenever cultural, social, and economic gaps exist. Cultural Brokering bridges gaps in our immigration ecosystem, addressing inequities many newcomers experience. This practice invites us to be in relationship with Indigenous communities and explore the question, How do we live well together on this land?

Looking Forward: Demographic Future, Evolving Immigrant Numbers and Canadian Opinion

According to Statistics Canada, immigration is projected to remain the main driver of future population growth, a trend that began in the early 1990s. In the first quarter of 2023, 98% of the country's growth was due to permanent and temporary immigration. Our rapid demographic changes will result in an increasingly diverse population in the decades ahead. Yet, surveys indicate rising concerns about the numbers of newcomers and the possible impact for intergroup tension. Plenary speakers will present various demographic forecasts and what it implies for the social and political climate

Regarder vers l'avenir : L'avenir démographique, l'évolution du nombre d'immigrants et l'opinion des Canadiens

Selon Statistique Canada, l'immigration devrait rester le principal moteur de la croissance démographique future, une tendance qui s'est amorcée au début des années 1990. Au cours du premier trimestre 2023, 98 % de la croissance du pays sera due à l'immigration permanente et temporaire. Nos changements démographiques rapides se traduiront par une population de plus en plus diversifiée dans les décennies à venir. Pourtant, les enquêtes révèlent des préoccupations croissantes concernant le nombre de nouveaux arrivants et l'impact possible sur les tensions entre les groupes. Les intervenants en séance plénière présenteront diverses prévisions démographiques et ce qu'elles impliquent pour le climat social et politique.

Le point de vue des Québécois sur les migrants du chemin Roxham : données d'un sondage et d'une analyse de presse.

Depuis le début de l'année 2017, de nombreux migrants sont entrés au Canada par le chemin Roxham, une route secondaire entre l'État de New York et le Québec, aujourd'hui fermée. Bien qu'avertis qu'ils seraient arrêtés, une fois sur le sol canadien, ils ont été autorisés à rester et à poursuivre une demande d'asile. Alors que le public québécois semblait initialement peu préoccupé par l'afflux de migrants passant par le chemin Roxham, l'augmentation de leur nombre au fil du temps a eu un impact important sur l'opinion publique Québécoise et a suscité une véritable polémique publique. Cet atelier examinera, les données du projet CSRH (Potvin, 2019-2023) portant sur les discours des québécois lors de grands débats publics, notamment à travers les médias traditionnels et sociaux. Dans une première partie (Potvin et Jedwab), des données d'un vaste sondage sur les attitudes des Québécois à l'égard des migrants du chemin Roxham en 2020-2021 seront présentées. Dans une 2e partie de l'atelier (Le Bourdais, Mekerian et Winter), il se penchera sur une analyse des chroniques d'opinion dans la presse écrite québécoise entre 2019 et 2021 afin d'en faire ressortir les principaux cadrages ou angles d'interprétation à dans les médias au même moment, et de réfléchir à l'influence de la couverture médiatique sur les opinions des citoyens sur des enjeux précis. Breaking Barriers: The Untold Stories of International Students with or without Families Coping with their Mental Health and Wellbeing on and off Campus

Voices of post-secondary international students and their dependent family members' access to mental health and well-being needs are becoming critical and deserve urgent attention. At the University of Calgary, our 18-month research endeavour focusing on international students with or without families, through a blend of qualitative and quantitative methodologies, sheds light on their nuanced experiences concerning mental health. Join us in exploring untold stories data-informed insights, and collaboratively addressing one of the burning topics as we collectively strive to create a more supportive and inclusive response to address the needs of international students with families in Canada.

Comparative perspectives on migrant integration: Case studies from non-traditional gateway cities in Canada and the United States

As two major global migration destinations, Canada and the United States share common tendencies towards the localization of immigration policies and place-based approaches, as evident in the federally funded Local Immigration Partnerships (LIPs) in Canada and the Welcoming America (WA) Cities and Counties initiatives in the US. This panel will draw upon diverse case studies from both countries in relation to the LIPs and WA, presenting a comparative perspective that is crucial for deepening our understanding of how various places, local initiatives, and agencies shape migrants' lived experiences in non-traditional gateway cities, and conversely, how these experiences influence the communities.

SWIS Responding to Need: When Numbers of Newcomer Youth Skyrocket

Following on the heels of pandemic restrictions, numbers of newcomer & refugee youth suddenly tripled, quadrupled & continued to grow, quickly overwhelming settlement workers in Calgary schools with requests for support. Working with school board partners, a systems analyst & the diverse, expansive knowledge of Calgary Bridge Foundation for Youth staff, we pivoted & introduced an Integrated Services Delivery Model strategy in less than 6 months, expanding our scope of support through collaboration & innovative thinking. Our ISDM is proving to be an effective SWIS service delivery model, successfully supporting many more immigrant & refugee newcomer youth with inclusive, equitable education resettlement opportunities. Come share the story.

A Collaborative Approach to Building a Data-Skilled Settlement Community

The importance of using data to inform settlement service delivery is growing, especially when considering the diverse emerging needs of newcomers. In recognition of the capacity gap settlement agencies face in leveraging their data, the Data Hub project, championed by the TEQ LIP and led by CCS in partnership with the University of Toronto Scarborough, strives to build the practical capacity of participating agencies to work with and collaborate on data. In this session, the Data Hub and its collaborators will share the project's collective experience and approach to building a data-skilled and data-centric settlement community through practical capacity building.

Enhancing Newcomer Economic Integration: An institutional ethnography and data integration project

Immigrant Services Calgary's Newcomer Knowledge Hub has undertaken a comprehensive data integration project aimed at enhancing newcomer economic and labour market integration. This project involves the development of a dynamic dashboard that visualizes key data related to newcomers' economic inclusion indicators. The dashboard incorporates sector-specific and publicly available data to provide insights into the employment trajectories of newcomers. Additionally, it highlights factors influencing job search and employment stability among different newcomer groups. This workshop will showcase our ongoing advocacy efforts at the organizational, sector, and policy levels to support newcomers in overcoming barriers related to 'Canadian experience' and transitioning away from 'survival jobs' toward full economic integration.

Unfree Labour: The Low Wage Stream of the Temporary Foreign Worker Program in the Seafood Industry in the Canadian Maritimes

Most migrant workers in Canada are employed through the Seasonal Agricultural Worker Stream (SAWP). Yet in the seafood industry most workers come through the low-wage stream of the Temporary Foreign Workers Program (TFWP). This roundtable discusses emerging and controversial issues related to the low wage stream of the TFWP: the lack of bilateral agreements between Canada and participating countries (i.e., Mexico; Philippines); unregulated and high recruitment fees for the workers; overcrowded accommodations and unaffordable rents, as well as precarious occupational conditions and limited access to health care. Canada's Careworker Program is used as a contrasting stream of the TFWP that is both highly feminized and highly racialized.

Getting Beyond the Myths: Reinventing Strategies to Enhance Newcomers' Employment Journey and Sense of Belonging in Canada

As Canada's immigration targets accelerate, settlement agencies are under increasing pressure to scale their activities to meet newcomer expectations for meaningful employment and work with employers effectively to recruit, hire and retain newcomer talent in our communities. During this interactive session, you will hear the journey of four settlement agencies from across the country as they reinvented their strategies to address these pressures for greater impact. With the support of LIFT through the Strategic Reinvention Initiative, these organizations have creatively re-thought how they meet the needs of both newcomers and employers, including redesigning their programming and partnership approach.

Experiences of accessing services among women impacted by forced migration: Findings and take-aways from a cross-sectoral community-based research project

Women living within intersections including migration, gender, race, and class are disproportionately affected by limited social support, gender-based violence, and racism. However, minimal programming and policies are informed by the experiences of this population. Through shared goals of better understanding lived realities of women impacted by forced migration, we describe our research project that is grounded in a community-academic cross-sectoral partnership between settlement and nursing. Using an intersectionality-framed narrative approach, we critically discuss findings from these women's stories with the intention of highlighting key take aways to inform settlement programming, policy, and research.

SWIS & Real Me: Exploring the Connections Between Quality Settlement Services & Youth Criminal Justice Involvement

Racialized youth from newcomer families are emerging as a disproportionately overrepresented population throughout the Alberta Justice system. The number of newcomer/refugee youth arriving annually in Alberta is growing exponentially, generating unprecedented demand for student support services within Calgary's two public school systems. Virtual Reality (VR) and Artificial Intelligence (AI) in Language Training for Newcomers to Canada

This research examines the educational utility of VR and AI technology in providing English language-based practice to Canadian newcomers. More than 120 adults were randomly placed into either a standard class, a VR class or an AI class where the learning outcomes in all three classes were thematically mirrored and engaged learners in interactive and discussion-based-role play in English conversation. This research is a partnership between the Syrian Canadian Foundation and the University of Toronto Mississauga aiming to better understand the pedagogical affordances and implications of VR and AI as language learning tools to help newcomers improve their language skills in an engaging way and accelerate their integration in Canada.

Pathways to Postsecondary Education for African Youth with Refugee Backgrounds in Canada

Canada leads the OECD as the country where the first- and second-generation children of immigrants have higher overall postsecondary education (PSE) participation rates than non-immigrants. Yet some groups of immigrant youth, including youth with refugee backgrounds from Africa have been found to achieve lower academic standards, study in lower streams, drop out at higher rates, and enter university in lower proportions. This session will present early research findings from a SSHRC-funded national community-based study exploring how the Canadian school experiences of African refugee youth impact their decision to pursue PSE. The Roles for LIPs in Large-Scale Humanitarian Resettlements

Over the past 15 years, Local Immigration Partnerships have played a significant role in three major humanitarian operations: Operation Syrian Refugee, Operation Afghan Safety, and Operation Ukrainian Safe Haven. In 2023, the National LIP Secretariat initiated a research project to investigate the specific roles LIPs had played in these efforts, with an emphasis on identifying promising practices and conditions that supported effective engagement. This panel will present the findings of that research and explore the possibilities for community-based partnerships to support future humanitarian flows.

Applying Culturally Responsive Approaches to Newcomer Research. An Ethical Example from Public Health

Calgary Catholic Immigration Society (CCIS) works at multiple levels of engagement seeking to directly impact newcomer families, while also working to create positive impact in the systems, services, and communities in which newcomer families interact. While we know that effective and meaningful research requires investment and time, it has been our experience that the academic approach, and ethics, often does not account for cultural safety throughout the research cycle. However, for community based academic research to be responsive to the needs of the client, and the sector, Researchers need to consider reevaluating their approach to forming research questions, requesting access of populations, collecting data, positioning service providers, and mobilizing findings.

CCIS, Habitus, and 19toZero have been working together to create effective strategies for ethical public health research ensuring cultural safety throughout the research design process. This workshop will speak to our learnings, and practical strategies that we have found effective in gaining meaningful participation, and actionable outcomes from Policy Makers, Researchers, Service Providers, and Newcomers.

Help Along the Way: Community-based Mental Health Supports for Newcomer Families and Youth

Newcomer families experience stresses and strains that impact their individual and family-wide mental health and wellbeing at many points in their settlement journeys. The availability of culturally-safe preventative mental health supports offers protective and restorative functions as well as a trusted pathway to intervention services if needed. This presentation discusses several group-based approaches that were effective in supporting newcomers at the family level and some specifically for youth. Building mental health knowledge, enhancing capacity to cope with the migration experience, and facilitating community connections are key factors.

Migration and Identities

A critical aspect of newcomers' identity is citizenship. Newcomers' sense of citizenship is linked to Canada's structured nature of opportunities. Structured opportunities perpetuate economic and social marginalization, undervalue contributions, rights and participation of racialized groups, and racism and racial discrimination are primary causal agents. Racism and racial discrimination create a sense of partial or incomplete citizenship for some newcomers. In this workshop, the presenters will address the issues of incomplete citizenship and implications for public policies that aim at strengthening settlement and integration.

Newcomer and immigrant well-being: A statistical analysis, a community-based program, and a study on internalized racism

Host country receptivity has been identified as an important factor in newcomer sense of belonging and well-being. While Canada is admitting over 1.2 million immigrants post-COVID, the country continues to racialize newcomers, de-skill, de-credential, and enforce “Canadian experience” requirements.

In this session, we will interrogate the shifting determinants of immigrant well-being through a analysis of Statistics Canada General Social Survey – Social Identities surveys (2013 & 2020). We will then present Alberta Network of Immigrant Women’s (ANIW) community-based ethno-cultural well-being group program, and conclude with ANIW’s examination of immigrant experiences and resistance to racism, internalization, and diaspora implications.

Passage to Freedom / Passage vers la liberté Documentary Film

Passage to Freedom (2022) is a moving documentary film featuring oral histories of Southeast Asian refugees who made the dangerous journey from Cambodia, Laos, and Vietnam to Canada. The film effectively weaves archival clips of news stories, wartime footage, and interviews with former refugees and Canadian immigration officials. New government policies and programs enabled Canada to resettle over 100,000 Southeast Asian refugees from 1975 to 1985. The Canadian response to the refugee crisis was recognized with the UNHCR Nansen Medal in 1986. The film delves into the harrowing and courageous journey during the Vietnam War, the Secret Lao War, and the Cambodian Genocide; their struggles in settlement, resilience, and contributions in Canada.

Going Forward Together: Migrant Selection, Settlement and Technological Advances

It is widely known that immigrant entry to Canada is largely based on a selection system with varying criteria in response to evolving circumstances. While the immigrant selection process is the envy of other immigrant receiving countries it has important limitations. The reality that newcomers encounter upon arrival is not always aligned with expectations. What is the relationship between selection and settlement and in this regard how can cross-sectoral collaboration be improved to maximize positive outcomes? How can new technologies assist in enhancing the newcomer experience?

- Session Chair: Samina Sami, CEO, COSTI Immigrant Services, Toronto, Ontario
- Jennifer Freeman, CEO, PeaceGeeks, Vancouver, British Columbia

Aller de l'avant ensemble : Sélection des migrants, établissement et progrès technologiques

L'entrée des immigrants au Canada repose largement sur un système de sélection dont les critères varient en fonction de l'évolution des circonstances. Bien que le processus de sélection des immigrants fasse l'envie d'autres pays d'accueil, il présente d'importantes limites. La réalité que les nouveaux arrivants rencontrent à leur arrivée ne correspond pas toujours à leurs attentes. Quelle est la relation entre la sélection et l'établissement et, à cet égard, comment la collaboration intersectorielle peut-elle être améliorée pour maximiser les résultats positifs ? Comment les nouvelles technologies peuvent-elles contribuer à améliorer l'expérience des nouveaux arrivants ?

Religious literacy: Addressing polarizing views in rural, suburban, and urban settings

Newcomers to Canada are mostly from highly religious or highly non-religious countries, like Nigeria, China, and India. Yet, Canada has a Judeo-Christian history with a growing number of non-religious people. This diverse demographic has and may continue to cause friction in our already polarizing country as we work towards reconciliation with Indigenous Peoples. Thankfully, religious literacy is one way to help build bridges between these religious, spiritual, and non-religious groups. Reducing the sector division: Better connecting Pre- and Post-arrival services

Providing comprehensive support to newcomers requires that the division between pre- and post-arrival services be addressed. Through Planning for Canada's pre-arrival services, immigrants access post-arrival support through settlement organizations like CCIS, Manitoba Start and COSTI, who have developed tools and practices to improve client outcomes. Connecting immigrants to short training options like Skills Enhancement for Newcomers is another way Canada's colleges, like Bow Valley College in Alberta, upskill immigrants and ensure they are supported through their journeys. Greater coordination between pre-arrival and post-arrival services will enable newcomers to hit the ground running and ease their settlement in Canadian communities.

Refugee Resettlement: Innovative & Practical Approaches to Housing

The housing crisis in Canada has reached peak levels. Throughout multiple waves of refugee resettlement over the years, CCIS adopted various innovative, yet practical approaches to securing housing for refugees destined to Calgary. This presentation will focus on the various strategies our team has learned, applied, and modified to meet the dynamic housing needs of clients in an increasingly tighter housing market; highlights include creative approaches to finding housing, landlord-liaison relationships, capacity building on a community level, and system adjustments to accommodate shifts in refugee arrivals. Attendees will benefit from a rich discussion about best practices, trends, and recommendations.

Bridging structural employment gaps for immigrant youth: A holistic approach to confront and overcome challenges

Immigrant youth face additional employment barriers, prompting The Immigrant Education Society (TIES) to launch "Empowering Youth through Employment" in 2016. This comprehensive initiative, funded by ESDC, equips youth with essential tools to navigate job market complexities and overcome socioeconomic challenges. In response to Alberta's economic downturn, immigrant youth (18-30) turn to gig work. In 2022, TIES partnered with a digital marketing agency, unveiling "Bridge for Digital Youth." This mobile-based program explores digital marketing careers. Our presentation will share effective strategies and research findings, offering insights into sustainable, feasible, and accessible employment training for immigrant youth in Alberta.

Canada's Economic Mobility Pathways Pilot: An Innovative Approach to Responding to the Global Refugee Crisis

As the number of displaced people worldwide continues to grow, labour mobility pathways can increase the number of displaced people able to secure durable solutions. This panel will highlight Canada's Economic Mobility Pathways Pilot (EMPP) to demonstrate how eligibility criteria was designed to capture greater numbers of displaced people, how the diversification of partnerships supports growth, and how the EMPP addresses gaps in the immigration ecosystem to match displaced newcomers with Canadian employers. This pilot allows Canada to bring forward a unique and modern approach that combines international humanitarian response with meeting Canada's economic needs.

Our Community Through Our Lens: Photo Essays as a form of youth civic engagement

Immigrant and refugee youth are too often overlooked as possible changemakers: non-citizens and too young to vote, their voice is marginalized. This breeds frustration and disinterest.

The Journeys to Active Citizenship project has created a photo essay toolkit to engage youth in their communities. Over a five-session program, youth learn about how to document their communities, and how to highlight the need for change, through photos.

The presentation will explore the program's successes and challenges through several rounds of piloting at settlement agencies around Ontario.

Opportunity for a Change: The International Student Experience in Nova Scotia and Post-Graduation Pathways

Nova Scotia is home to eleven universities, and in turn to an increasing population of international students (IS). Cape Breton hosts a large IS population, with 77% of the 9,100 students at Cape Breton University arriving from outside of Canada. Drawing from recent survey research conducted with IS in Cape Breton, academic research looking at post-graduate mobility pathways in NS and what non-economic aspects of day-to-day life can influence these decisions while providing a regional first voice perspective, this workshop will explore the challenges, aspirations, and mobility of IS in this rural region, and what the implications may be for post-graduate retention in this context.

Exploring "North-North" Migration Processes and Dynamics

Research on so-called North-North migration processes remains an emerging field of study. As a result of this, our knowledge on the lived experiences of these individuals as well as of their reasons and motivations for moving is relatively limited. This workshop explores North-North migration processes and dynamics with a specific focus on Canada. Migration Data - Exporting Lessons from Colombia

On February 8, 2021, the Duque administration granted protection to over 1.8 million undocumented Venezuelan migrants living in Colombia. This protection includes immunity from deportation for ten years, access to the regulated labour market, as well as public health services, education services, and other social services. Public agencies have collected rich administrative data on the identities and trajectories within this migrant population.

In partnership with Global Affairs Canada and Alinea International, Audrey Wubbenhorst and Colin Decker are assisting Colombia's Department of National Planning with the construction of a new center of excellence, The National Migrant Observatory, that will store the data, glean insights from it, and communicate those insights to policy makers and international stakeholders. This presentation will discuss the strategic, organizational, statistical, and communication-related challenges and opportunities of working with rich migration data in a public context. We will share key learnings that can also be applied to a Canadian context.

In addition, we introduce the Canadian Index for Measuring Integration (assembled by the Metropolis Institute) and discuss the feasibility of using this tool in international contexts.

Channeling the Private Sector for Settlement Success: CUIAS experience with CUAET arrivees

Over the last two years, CUIAS, a Toronto based settlement agency, has been inundated with offers of financial and in-kind support from corporations, foundations and larger donors to help Ukrainians seeking refuge in Canada. Often these offers resulted in unique and successful projects with a multitude of partners. This outpouring of support challenged our organization and sector to adapt in order to turn this corporate goodwill into tangible benefits so desperately needed by the recipients and in keeping with donor intentions. Can this corporate goodwill be counted on for the next new mass arrival to Canada? Presenters from CUIAS, ad hoc groups and other will address these questions based on experiences of 2022 and 2023.

La migration en contexte de changements climatiques au Québec : enjeux, complexité et reconnaissance

La migration climatique est invisible sur le plan du droit international et des politiques d'immigration canadiennes. Pourtant, la recherche montre que les facteurs environnementaux sont interreliés aux facteurs sociaux, politiques et économiques qui poussent les personnes à quitter leur pays. Par ailleurs, le contexte des changements climatiques augmente la fréquence et l'intensité de certains aléas naturels, ce qui amplifie par le fait même la place qu'occupe l'environnement au sein des parcours migratoires. Cet atelier réunit des présentations relatives aux impacts politiques, économiques, sanitaires mais aussi générés que les changements climatiques peuvent avoir sur les personnes et leurs parcours migratoires. A Story of Growth and Resiliency

JIAS is a Jewish agency with roots that date back 100 years. We uphold Canada's commitment to embracing immigrants and refugees and believe all newcomers should be:

- Warmly welcomed, well served, and connected to communities;
- Have the right to be safe, treated with dignity and respect, and valued for their traditions, cultures, achievements, and aspirations; and
- Provided with the choices and opportunities that will empower them towards self-reliance.

Impact of Canadian Ethnic Media on Successful Settlement Outcomes

With 30 years of experience tracking the Canadian ethnic media, MIREMS proposes a poster dramatizing the value of local multicultural outlets as a resource to improve settlement outcomes. The poster will illustrate situations in which settlement workers and DEI managers face communications challenges that can be solved by engaging with the ethnic media and receiving community-based insights. Considering the growing annual number of immigrants arriving in Canada - who first turn to local TV, radio, newspapers and websites for information in their mother tongue - it's essential to include newcomer perspectives as reflected in these multicultural outlets.

The Role of GEO NS in Enhancing Digital Inclusion for Canadians

In this poster, we discuss the meaning of digital inclusion and its implications for different demographic groups, including immigrants. We also highlight the barriers faced by Canadians in accessing the digital world. Through statistics and storytelling, we discuss the work done by GEO NS in reducing barriers to digital inclusion and the positive impact that it has made in the lives of people we have supported. This poster also provides a glimpse into the Digital Champions program at GEO NS, with the option to sign up for free digital inclusion training.

Innovative Workforce Strategies for Engaging Newcomers in Rural Ontario

The future of rural businesses and communities depends on effective workforce development strategies. This poster examines how rural communities and businesses can enhance our understanding of innovative rural workforce strategies, plans, and policies to address current and future labour gaps. This research initiative surveyed business supporting organizations and workforce planning organizations in Ontario to share insights from their regions. The results of this survey outlined several innovative workforce strategies that had been attempted or successfully integrated into rural communities, including employment services and training programs to support the attraction, retention, and integration of newcomers, immigrants and refugees

Responding to racism by Chinese immigrants in Canada

We aim to understand how Chinese immigrants respond to racism, considering structural and cultural influences. Based on nine focus group discussions with 48 participants in the Greater Toronto Area in late 2021 and early 2022, our findings reveal diverse responses, ranging from doing nothing and avoidance to seeking higher authorities and public exposure. Responses vary based on gender, age, and the specific experiences of racism. We contend that these responses are intricate, influenced by a blend of their native and host cultures, and constrained by systemic racism in the host society, highlighting their marginalized minority status

Quandaries of Refugee Protection: The Canada-US Safe Third Country Agreement

This research examines how Canada deems the Safe Third Country Agreement (STCA) a necessary management tool (considering recent vital advancements), as the STCA is emerging as the rule, not the exception, reflecting a new form of border and migration governance. I also examine our role in shaping border management mechanisms and explore the role of collective responsibility in the face of punitive migration policies. Forced migration policies primarily focus on identifying refugees and determining who should shoulder protection. My project will offer an analysis which highlights collaboration, equity, and inclusion, and addresses the gaps within forced migration policies

Home language exposure in preschool aged children from newcomer families knowledge of the home language is an important capital for newcomer children: supporting education, participation in community and family, and building identity. Using a mixed-methods approach, the current study aimed to identify factors that influence home language exposure in preschool-aged children from multilingual newcomer families in Edmonton, Alberta. Measures of language exposure, resilience, and parent education were gathered from parents of 13 preschool-aged children enrolled in our dual language program. Semi-structured interviews were analyzed to learn about children's attitudes and perceptions towards bilingualism. Results can serve to inform the supports provided to newcomer families toward enhancing their home language

The Immigration Experience of Guatemalans in Canada

Canada offers a site of reflection, exploration, and research about the experiences of diasporas as a sought-after destination for people in the Americas and around the world. Although the history of immigration to Canada from Latin America is relatively recent, it is important to understand this phenomenon in depth to capture its place in the Canadian mosaic. Therefore, I will focus this essay on people migrating from Latin America, specifically Guatemala, to Canada to shed light on their migratory trajectories and integration experiences in Canada. Examining the experience of Guatemalans in Canada will highlight the many challenges they face in their journey searching for a haven to improve their lives abroad

The Role of Diasporas in Migration

In Rohingya refugee camps, exacerbated in-group bias stemming from forced displacement from Myanmar has created divisions with host communities in Cox's Bazar. This study aims to investigate the impact of inter-group collaboration on in-group bias within refugee camps. Using a multi-method approach, including secondary analysis of experimental data and literature review, we seek to understand the dynamics of collaboration between Rohingya refugees and the Bangladeshi host community. Findings will inform evidence-based strategies for promoting positive inter-group relations and reducing in-group bias, fostering inclusive, harmonious communities, and improving health outcomes.

Health and Housing, Newcomer Access to Health Care

In Canada, where 15% of the population lacks access to a family doctor, virtual care is a solution to the shortage of primary care providers. This scoping review examines how virtual care addresses healthcare access for refugee and immigrant populations. It summarizes the factors that enable, hinder, and represent best practices based on a systematic scoping review. The study will explore the willingness to adopt virtual care, the types of virtual care utilized, and the perception of this approach by these communities.

Economic Empowerment of Newcomer Women

The poster will highlight innovative practices for empowering immigrant women facing economic abuse. The practices address financial vulnerabilities, promote economic independence, and enhance overall well-being. The promising practices include insights into culturally sensitive interventions, financial literacy programs, and screening tools. The poster will foster a supportive environment for newcomer women, promoting economic resilience, and advancing inclusive practices that empower individuals to break free from economic abuse.

Migration and the social determinants of health

This research focuses on the concept of 'food waste' specifically at the retail level and explores the potential to connect this waste to the food security cycle through redistribution to food rescue organizations. Canada annually generates 50 million tonnes of wasted food, with 11 million tonnes being avoidable. According to 2023 statistics, one in four immigrants and refugees in Canada experiences food insecurity. This scoping review aims to investigate existing programs and policies for redistributing retail level usable food waste, with a goal of enhancing food security for specific populations.

Refugees as victims, the Canadian nation-state as savior: A historical examination of refugee subjectivity in Canada from 1960-2015

This article demonstrates how refugees have been constituted by the dominant political economic discourse of two key junctures in Canadian history. The first critical time period (1960s-1990s) was marked by liberal ideology and borders opened for the first time to refugees from the Global South. Constituted as victims, the Canadian nation-state was able to secure its humanitarian identity through "saving" refugees from around the globe. The political economic landscape shifted significantly between 2000-2015 towards neoliberalism. Refugees continued to be positioned as victims but were weaponized against refugee claimants, who were seen as "bogus" refugees and a threat to the nation-state.

Du Brésil vers le Canada : le parcours migratoire des migrants haïtiens ayant traversés l'Amérique du Sud

Il s'agit d'une étude expliquant les éléments qui incitent les migrants haïtiens au Brésil à immigrer vers les États-Unis ou Canada. La recherche retrace le trajet périlleux des migrants haïtiens qui ont traversé les frontières des pays de l'Amérique du Sud à pied et en autobus, en passant par l'Amérique centrale pour atteindre la frontière entre le Mexique et les États-Unis. Des résultats de l'étude mettent en évidence que les difficultés d'intégration des migrants haïtiens en raison des problèmes linguistiques, académiques, chômage et racisme constituent un motif de mobilité de cette catégorie d'immigrants vers les États-Unis ou le Canada.
